cable

- periphrasis (ship equipment) = chain cable A chain or line (rope) bent to the anchor.

- sidreni lanac: Own vessel’s Master ordered the anchor party forward and by slacking away the anchor cable a collision was avoided. The port anchor was then let go using a similar amount of cable as before, but when applying the brake, the windlass catastrophically failed.

- cable (seamanship, ship equipment) originally, a thick strong rope or wire uže (za n.č.)

priyezivanje i tegljenje, obično deblje)

- cable (navig) a measure of length or distance = equivalent to (UK) 1/10 nautical mile, approx. 600 feet; (USA) 120 fathoms, 720 feet (219 m) (archaic use) kabel (1/10 nm = 185,2 m): The other ship was now at a distance of some 3 cables and approaching at speed on the port side. With the vessels now about seven cables apart, he contacted the ferry via VHF and proposed that they should pass starboard to starboard. The pilot left the vessel about six cables before the normal pilotage disembarkation point. The vessels were now about seven cables apart VTS instructed the vessel to drop anchor N-5 anchorages with keeping 4 cables distance to other vessels. (https://safety-sea.com/)

- cable (električni) električni kabel: The power cable for the grinders was deployed across the deck, which was about two metres above sea level. Damage to cable insulation and fittings - speedy actions by the crew were commendable. Lessons Learned: Steel braiding on electrical cable is required to be 'earthed' at both ends for safety reasons.

- zaštitna armatura, kabelska zaštitna uvodnica, izolacija električnog kabela: This caused an electrical short, resulting in sparking and leading to high temperatures which caused damage to the cable insulation and fittings. supply ~ dovodni kabel, opskrbeni kabel:

- electrical ~ električni kabel: The heavy electrical cable...
berthing /bərˈθiŋ/ (seamanship, ship & line handling) = docking ANTONYM unberthing manoeuvring the ship to its berth in the port and mooring it to the quay, dock or pier pristajanje, privezivanje, koštivanje, akostavanje: A 100m long, liquid petroleum gas tanker was conducting a routine berthing at a “T” jetty, which was connected to dolphins by walkways. The master insisted on being on the bridge for the canal transit, and for berthing and un-berthing. ~ manœuvre manovra pristajanja: The two men did not discuss the ship’s manoeuvring characteristics, the status of the propulsion or how the berthing manoeuvre would be carried out. The vessel was equipped with a bow thruster unit, rated at 20k, to assist with berthing manoeuvres.

preparation for ~ priprema za privezivanje: On this occasion, when several items of heavy electrical load were started in quick succession in preparation for berthing, the generator frequency dropped below 58Hz.

berthing accommodation (m) (ports) smještaj na vezovima za brodove u luci, smještajni kapacitet za brodove (u luci), svi vezovi zajedno (u nekoj luci)

NOTES ON THE USE OF THE DICTIONARY:

Headwords can be:
(a) single words (cable, berthing) or
(b) multi-word units (berthing accommodation, berthing alongside)

Homonym = words of the same form but different, or partly different, meaning (cable1, cable2, cable3, cable4 etc.)

Pronunciation = IPA (International Phonetic Association) transcriptions are applied

= (other forms of the word) = derivatives, spelling variations, abbreviations, related words

Part of speech = n (noun), v (verb), adj (adjective), adv (adverb), prep (preposition), prep. phrase, etc.

Sub-entries = multi-word expressions (all red-coloured):
(a) a word or group of words (adjective or noun) + headword (marked by the sign ~), e.g. supply ~ = supply cable; electrical ~ = electrical cable; preparation for ~ = preparation for manoeuvre
(b) headword (marked by the sign ~) + a word or group of words, e.g. ~ armour; ~ gland; ~

Usage labels: = Labels mark the register (i.e. maritime-related subject field) where the headwords (terms) or sub-entries are used; In this dictionary these include the following:

It was found that the small basis bore ventilation air pipes to the engine room were completely blocked by rust flakes.

In this case, crushed nut shells were injected into the turbocharger under 7 bar air pressure.

No1 compressor was isolated but the engineers soon noticed that the air pressure in the main air receiver was dropping.

Accordingly, the air start valves were opened and one of the engineers operated the turning gear control lever with the intention of disengaging the turning gear from the main engine indicator cocks were left open, the turning gear disengaged, the air receiver valves and main air start valve were shut, and the lubricating and cooling water pumps were left running.

There is no doubt that their swift actions in stopping the engines and isolating the fuel and air supplies to the engine room contributed significantly to extinguishing the fire.

The engineer then opened the air supply valve to pressurise the reservoir.

A metal air-tight tank built into a boat to insure flotation even when the boat is swamped.

Following an unsuccessful attempt to fight the fire with a portable dry powder extinguisher, the engines were shut down and the air vents closed.

AIS data

AIS /ˈeɪ ɛs/ (–Automatic Identification System) (n) (navig, safety) Automatic Identification System (AIS) – Used to help identify vessels, to assist in target tracking (based on Global Navigation Satellite System), and to improve quality of information available to OOW. AIS continually transmits the ship’s own data to other vessels and VTS stations. It also continuously receives data from other vessels and VTS stations and, when linked to radar or ECDIS, can also display this data. AIS transmits: static data (MMSI number, call sign and name, IMO number, length and breadth, type of ship, location of position fixing antenna), dynamic data (ship’s position, position time in UTC, course over ground, speed over ground, heading, navigational status, rate of turn), and voyage data (ship’s draught, m hazardous cargo, destination and ETA, route plan – waypoints) (Seamanship Notes 2004).; AIS is a navigation and anti-collision tool enabling the exchange of ship-to-ship information.

datum dobiveni od AIS

AIS should be operational at all times AIS system is used to exchange vessel and navigation data including vessel name and call sign, length and beam, position with accuracy indication and integrity status, course, speed, heading and ROT and other specific information, all in real time. Data is shared with other nearby ships as well as coastal VTS (Vessel Traffic Service) stations. Vessels were usually tracked using AIS as manual acquisition and tracking was generally less reliable. All available equipment should be used by the OOW, whether be it ARPA, AIS or anti-collision alarms (COLREG rule 7 -Risk of collision). The vessel’s AIS was switched off. The primary means of navigation was paper charts. The IMO made the carriage of AIS mandatory under SOLAS V for all vessels of 300 GT or more engaged on international voyages from 31 December 2004. AIS is publicly broadcast via a VHF transponder device with the primary function of improving ship-to-ship and controlled water space ‘situational awareness’, such as major ports and traffic pinch-points like the Dover and Singapore Straits. AIS transmits dynamic position and movement data, voyage related facts and static information such as vessel details designed to enhance water space management within the VHF horizon.

The 30,000 DWT containeship was underway in the Ligurian Sea as of 11:20 a.m. EDT on Wednesday, according to AIS data from MarineTraffic.com. The speed derived from his GPS fixing and confirmed by AIS data showed the vessel maintained her maximum speed of 12 knots until shortly before the grounding. AIS data and visual observation confirmed that the tanker’s speed was not excessive and it was not abnormally close. AIS data as of 15:00 UTC showed the vessel’s status as “underway using engine” but with the assistance of six tugs as it continued its voyage to Hamburg.

The anchor cable is secured on the forecastledeck by stoppers, devil-claws and anchor lashings.

The anchor rode is made up of a combination of rope and chain. At least some of the rode, the bottom portion next to the anchor, should be of chain or wire rope. In France, the regulations demand five times the length of the boat for the total rode of which one fifth, or one boat length, should be chain (or 2 boat lengths for boats over 9 metres). An anchor-rode is the connection system between anchor and the boat and its sturdiness during mooring is undoubtedly essential.

This violent movement resulted in the timber shifting across the vessel about 1 metre, giving the vessel an angle of list of about 8° to port. This caused her to assume an angle of loll, and manoeuvring back alongside generated forces that made her “flop” from side to side. This change in list, called lolling was often 5 degrees or more, which caused havoc with loading arms, hoses, and mooring lines.

Azimuthing propulsor (n) (marine eng, nav arch) = azipod
The tugboat features a propulsion package based on twin Rolls-Royce Bergen C26:33L9PG engines and a pair of highly reliable Rolls-Royce US 205 CP azimuth thrusters for maneuvering and strong bollard pull. The chief officer set each azimuth thruster to face 45° outwards for the ship move and proceeded to take the ship through a narrow channel between moored craft.

Three minutes after grounding an engineering alarm sounded and the OOW placed both azipod control levers to zero.

Bareboat charter usually covers a certain period of time, sometimes a very long period, and is often hinged to a management agreement. In a bareboat charterparty the charterer is given full control to the vessel for a specific period of time, whereas all other operating costs are covered by the charter. Most tankers are traded under spot or time charter contracts. The company identified on the charter-party who charters the ship on a bareboat or demise charter. In this the charterer assumes control over all operations, costs and responsibilities associated with the vessel for an agreed period of time. The charterer becomes or appoints the shipmanager and may also have the right to sub-charter the vessel. (http://www.ihsfairplay.com/About/Definitions/definitions.html) The hiring or leasing of a ship for a period of time during which the shipowner provides only the ship while the charterer provides the crew together with all stores and bunkers and pays all operating costs http://www.tkmglobal.net/chartering_ beacon (safety) = distress beacon In the system of SAR, beacons use radio signals to indicate distress. Each unit has a built-in transmitter and batteries. Two main beacon types interest the Coast Guard: an Emergency Locator Transmitter (ELT), designed for aircraft and an Emergency Position Indicating Radio Beacon (EPIRB), designed for vessels. Both transmit a radio signal when activated. Unlike most ELTs, EPIRBs transmit a coded message that indicates the identity of the beacon in use. A third type of beacon, which operates through the satellites for use on land, is the Personal Locator Beacon (PLB) class. (http://www.ccg-gcc.gc.ca/eng/CCG/SAR_Maritime_Sar#Rescue_Alerting)

(http://www.businessdictionary.com/definition/bill-of-lading-B-L.html); Originally called a bill of loading, a bill of lading is not necessarily the complete contract of carriage of goods but is usually the best evidence of the contract. It is, as well, a receipt signed by the master or on his behalf indicating in what apparent order and condition the goods have been received on board. Finally, it is also a document of title and thus a document of transfer, but not a negotiable instrument (Tetely); Legal document signed by or for the captain/master, agents, owners of a vessel or the (common) carrier. It is written evidence of the contract of carriage by sea and/or by land.
A document that establishes the terms of a contract between a shipper and a transportation company that moves freight between specified ports for a specified charge.

B/L (=bill of lading) (n) (mar law) Document issued by a shipowner to a shipper of goods. It serves as a receipt for the goods, evidence of the contract of carriage and document of title. As a receipt it contains the description and quantity of the goods as well as suitable notations if the goods are not in apparent good condition when received by the ship. As evidence of the contract of carriage, the Bill of Lading contains the terms and conditions of the contract or, where the contract is represented by a Charter-Party, a reference to the Charter-Party. As a document of title, the “to order” Bill of Lading is used by a third party to take delivery of the goods from a ship.

both to blame collision clause (n) (mar law) Clause in a Bill of Lading or charter party which stipulates that, in the event of a collision between two ships where both are at fault, the owners of the cargo must indemnify the carrying ship against any amount paid by the carrying ship to the non-carrying ship for damage to that cargo. This clause arises because, under American law, a cargo owner is not able to make any recovery from the carrier for damage resulting from negligent navigation but may instead sue the non-carrying ship which in turn seeks recovery from the carrying ship in proportion of his fault. This would render a carrier indirectly liable for a loss for which he is not directly liable to the cargo owner. The clause has, however, been held to be invalid in the American courts when incorporated with a common carrier. http://www.tkmglobal.net/chartering_B.HTM

A bow thruster is an auxiliary motor and propeller mounted athwartships at the bow, and employed to maneuver the ship sideways. The ship had two 2,000 kW bow thrusters. This seemed to work and the Master also deployed a bow thruster to stop the starboard turn, but it was too late; the vessel made several heavy contacts with the breakwater. The pilot ordered astern propulsion and bow thruster to starboard. The pilot tried to use the bow thrusters to drive the vessel back into the channel. As we had now had lost steering, a bow-thrust was ordered to be put on line as to aid in the control of the vessel. The master confirmed to the pilot that the bow thruster was ready for use. The ship was equipped with a 3,000kW bow thruster. The thrusters were ineffective at speeds above 5kts.

The bridge manual contains bridge cards for watchkeeping, bridge management, passage planning, navigation with ECDIS, preparations for arrival and pilot
The OOW was sitting in the port bridge chair where he had a direct view of both radar and ECDIS displays.

The layout of the central bridge console prevented the chief officer from utilising the ECDIS display to support the Master during pilotage. After the vessel left her berth, her master, who was positioned at the after-looking bridge console, handed control to the chief officer. A radar was allocated to the pilot for his own use on the port side of the main bridge console.

The tow line became taut and the mate, who was at the bridge controls, stopped the winch as he could no longer pay out the line.

The ship’s bridge equipment included X and S-band radar displays that were set on the 6nm range scale. All bridge equipment was functioning normally. The ship’s bridge equipment included X- and S-band radars. All other bridge equipment, including speed logs, depth indicators, AIS and GPS receivers was operational and functioning as designed.

BridgeLink is a unifying platform for linking critical navigation equipment, such as radar, ECDIS, conning and propulsion control with vessel automation and power management and sensors used for monitoring condition and performance of engineroom systems.
The bridge manual contains detailed instructions for watchkeeping, bridge management, passage planning and pilot management. The bridge manual formed part of the IMS and detailed the company's bridge procedures, checklists and navigational safety guidelines.

The fundamental requirements of planning and executing a safe navigational passage must be clearly and fully understood and implemented by all bridge officers. After lunch, the bridge OOW gave the duty engineers permission to test the main engine.

The bridge personnel were not functioning as a team on either vessel.

The SMS bridge procedures provided by the managers were comprehensive and included extensive guidance on the conduct of navigation using ECDIS. The company's bridge procedures, checklists and navigational safety guidelines were set out in a series of bridge cards that were compiled together in the IMS to form a bridge manual. The principles of bridge resource management (BRM), such as consultation and cross-checking, are equally applicable to engine room operations, particularly during an emergency. Contributing to the circumstances that resulted in the collision was the inadequate bridge resource management between the master and the pilot. Poor bridge resource management by the pilot, captain, and bridge team, along with complacency resulted in more than $8 million in damage to the wharf and ship. It is imperative that pilots and ships' bridge teams work together and implement the best practices of Bridge Resource Management.

CAT fines (=catalytic fines) (n) (marine eng) using marine fuel with aluminium and silicon content; Cat fines (catalytic fines) are hard aluminium and silicon oxide particles that are normally present in heavy fuel oil.

(aluminijski i slikonski čestice u brodskom gorivu): Cat fines in fuel entering the engine will cause wear. The higher the amount of cat fines, the higher the wear will be. The recommended maximum acceptable level of cat fines entering the engine should always be as low as possible and maximum 15 ppm Al+Si for short periods. Maintain settling tank temperature above 85°C to aid settling and water content removal.

Wear from cat fines in two-stroke engines is found in the combustion chamber on cylinder liner, piston rings and piston ring grooves, resulting in high wear rates and possible scuffing.

Celestial fix (n) (navig) nebeska pozicija, pozicija dobivena astronomskom navigacijom: Due to the long time it takes to complete a set of celestial observations, advancing and retarding LOPs is a common feature of a celestial fix.

Celestial horizon (n) (navig) an imaginary plane through the observer at right angles to the local vertical horizon (http://www.seatalk.info/cgi-bin/nautical-marine-sailing-dictionary) astronomski horizont, nebeski horizont

Celestial navigation (n) (navig) Celestial navigation systems are based on observation of the positions of the Sun, Moon, Planets and navigational stars. Such systems are in use as well for terrestrial navigating as for interstellar navigating. By knowing which point on the rotating earth a celestial object is above and measuring its height above the observer's horizon, the navigator can determine his distance from that subpoint. A nautical almanac and a marine chronometer are used to compute the subpoint on earth a celestial body is over, and a sextant is used to measure the body's angular height above the horizon. That height can then be used to compute distance from the subpoint to create a circular line of position. A navigator shoots a number of stars in succession to give a series of overlapping lines of position. Where they intersect is the celestial fix. The moon and sun may also be used. The sun can also be used by itself to shoot a succession of lines of position (best done around local noon) to determine a position (Blewitt 2002) nebeska navigacija, astronomiska navigacija practise celestial navigation provoditi astronomsku navigaciju primijeniti astronomsku navigaciju

It has been said that its origin lies in the medieval Latin carta partita or charta partita or charta divisa, where an agreement was torn into two pieces and one half was given to each party. Proof of the whole contract was no doubt difficult if one party was obstinate - modern methods of photocopying the contract for each party seem preferable. A charterparty is part contract of hire (affreightment (supra)) and part contract of transport (carriage). The proportion of affreightment decreases as one moves from a demise charter, to a time charter and then to a voyage charter, while the proportion of carriage increases from a demise charter through a time charter to a voyage charter. Affreightment is essentially placing a ship at the disposal of another party, while transport is essentially the carrier (supra) taking charge of goods. Hire (infra) is the consideration paid under demise and time charterparties; freight (infra) is the consideration paid under voyage charterparties and bills of lading. ugovor o najmu broda, pomorski ugovor o najmu, ugovor o iskorištavanju broda, čarter, čarter-partija: The typical tramp operates under a charter party, that is, a contract for the use of the vessel.; 2 ugovor o prijevozu charterparty bill of lading (n) (mar law) A bill of lading used as a proof of receipt of goods issued by the charterer who charters a vessel to the shipper or shippers for whom the charterer has agreed to transport cargo. The consideration paid by the charterer is hire, which is payable at specified intervals during the term of the charter. Under a demise charterparty, the shipowner appoints the master and the crew, although they are paid and controlled by the demise charter rates

The tariff applied for chartering tonnage in a particular trade is known as charter rates. Charter rates are also affected by various other circumstances, such as crop failures and political crises. Under time charter (TC) contracts, vessels are hired for a specific period at a pre-decided daily rate. MidEast VLCC rates fall nearly 30 Worldscale points this week. TC rates for dry bulk vessels have fallen considerably over the last few months. Chartering rates for Suezmaxes and very large crude carriers (VLCCs) have recovered rapidly in recent weeks after plunging to their lowest in more than year this summer. The gross charter rate is US$12,000 per day, minus a 4.75% commission paid to third parties, for a period of about twelve (12) months to maximum fifteen (15) months. Extensive experience with minimum 5 to 8 years in subordinate positions on board ships is required for this position. Fluency in English language is a must. A rapid rise in the temperature of the EGE was noticed, and the Chief Engineer realised there was a fire inside the EGE casing. However, the clutch appeared to be performing correctly and the chief engineer decided the problem was due to an instrumentation fault. The second engineer was instructed to leave the control room and, with heavy smoke now issuing from the engine room, the master and chief engineer considered it unsafe to enter. Chief and Second Engineer tasks will include: a) Overseeing the engine department in a merchant ship. b) Operation and maintenance of engine room machinery.

CMI (=Comite Maritime Internationale) (n) (mar law) The Comité Maritime International (CMI) has attempted to bring about an international convention on the responsibility of classification societies without success so far. In May 1998, the CMI Assembly adopted Principles of Conduct for Classification Societies. These principles imposed certain duties and procedures and outlined standards of practice and performance for societies which adopt them. A year later, the CMI Assembly adopted Model Contractual Clauses for Use in Agreements between Classification Societies and Governments and Classification Societies and Shipowners, which define and clarify, subject to national law, the circumstances under which civil liability of the classification societies and their employees and agents should be regulated or limited. The classification societies have been in serious negotiation with European Union (EU) authorities to produce, if possible, a mutually acceptable directive on liability of classification societies. Instrumental in the adoption of many important international conventions, e.g. 1) Collisions between Vessels, 1910.

conference (n) (mar law, shipping econ) an association of ship owners operating in the same trade route who operate under collective conditions and agree on tariff rates; Two or more shipping lines operating a service in common between designated geographical areas. The lines agree a set of freight rates and any special rates for shippers and each line charges the same as the others.
http://www.tkmglobal.net/chartering_C.HTM brodarska konferencija, konferenca:
Competition in liner service is regulated generally by agreements, known as conferences, among the shipowners. A steamship conference, for example, is a group of shipowners that negotiate and agree upon rates and terms for certain services. A member of a conference is a shipowner who is part of the group. A conference rate is the agreed-upon rate for a particular service.

Confined spaces are tanks, cofferdams, void spaces, CO2 chambers and cold storage chambers. They are areas that are not easily accessible and can contain hazardous gases or substances. Entrances to confined spaces are often referred to as entry points. Confined waters are areas of water that are restricted in some way, such as in a harbor or canal.

Confirmation is the act of proving something true or correct. Confirmation is often used in the context of financial transactions, such as confirming the receipt of a letter. A confirming bank is a bank that adds its confirmation to another bank's letter of credit and promises to pay the beneficiary upon presentation of the documents specified in the letter.

Confiscation is the act of taking something away from someone without their consent, often as a punishment. Confiscation can be applied to a ship when it is deemed to be illegal.

Conflict of interest is a situation in which a person has overlapping responsibilities that may lead to a conflict of interest. Conflict of interest guidelines are often used to prevent such conflicts from arising.

Conformance test report is a report that confirms that a product meets certain standards. It is often used in the shipping industry to ensure that a ship meets safety and performance standards.

This is referred to as congestion. In some ports, this delay is of such a structural nature, that the mooring time of vessels in these ports brings on additional costs. To compensation for those costs, an additional surcharge is levied on the sea freight.

Cospas-Sarsat COSPAS-SARSAT 406 MHz Beacons - Alerts from 406 MHz distress beacons — ELTs, EPIRBs and PLBs — are received by the COSPAS-SARSAT constellation of geostationary (GOES) and low-earth orbiting (LEO) satellites and relayed to ground stations called local users terminals. Alerts are then forwarded to the associated mission control centre (MCC) for processing and determination of position. (CAMSAR II – Mission Coordination) The 406 MHz distress beacons are coded, and when properly registered, identify the aircraft or vessel and give contact information, which the JRCC/MRSC coordinator uses in resolving the incident. cut&run (=cut and run) (v) (logist) SEE cargo rollover SEE short shipped cargo situacija kada brod zaostaje u svojem plovdenom redu (schedule) i operativa treba “dovesti brod na schedule”. Temjere dovodenja broda u vremenski okvir plovdenog redu su “recovery measures”, a među njima je često CUT&RUN. To znači da se donosi odluka da brod u određenom trenutku prekida trgovačke operacije u luci, te određeni teret ostaje na obali neukrcan. To dovodi do preusmjeravanja bukiranog tereta na drugi raspolaživi brod (=cargo rollover). U tim slučajevima teret ostaje neukrcan i mora se pre-bukirati se na sljedeći brod. (personal information: Jakov Karmelić 2021); terminate discharge/loading operations before all the boxes have been discharged or loaded in order to maintain schedule.. This delay could be due to slow port operations, delays due to weather etc..

A number of vessels are built with diesel-electric or turbo-electric drive.

Four 6-cylinder models (each developing 5700 kW) are specified to drive the main gensets of a diesel-electric LNG carrier.

The first merchant ocean-going liner driven by a diesel engine was the Selandia in 1912. A diesel engine may be designed to work on the two-stroke or four-stroke cycle. The four-cycle Diesel engine is easier to reverse than the two-cycle Diesel engines as there are fewer moving parts to be changed in direction of rotation.

The most powerful diesel engines in the world are two stroke crosshead engines.

Dual-fuel or spark-ignited engines are already capable of operating with fuels such as methane and natural gas in gaseous form from fossil, biomass or synthetic sources, while diesel engines can run on liquid biofuels, biodiesel or e-diesel.

An important parameter for a marine diesel engine is the rating figure, usually stated as brake horsepower (bhp) or kilowatts per cylinder at a given revolutions per minute.

A slow-speed two-stroke diesel is usually arranged to operate continuously on heavy fuel and have available a diesel oil supply. The 2 stroke diesel crosshead engine works on exactly the same principle and cycle as the 2 stroke diesel trunk piston engine. Unlike the 4 stroke engine, a two stroke diesel engine does not use the piston to push out the exhaust gas, instead, air enters the cylinder around bottom dead centre and sweeps or the exhaust gas from the cylinder.

In a four stroke trunk piston engine of 1100 kw output, a hole was (burn) through a piston crown.

On a medium speed 4 stroke engine the oil is supplied to the main bearings through drillings in the engine frame to the crankshaft main bearings.

These ancillaries need electrical power which is usually provided by generators driven by medium- or high-speed diesel engines.

The 130 TBN lubricant was evaluated for 3 months in the Sulzer 6RLB90 low-speed engine of a container ship, which operated at 85–90 per cent maximum continuous rating. Medium- and low-speed gas-burning engine designs are offered by the MAN Diesel group, which cites successful experience with a Holeby 16V28/32-G (gas injection).
Diesel fuel (n) (marine eng) dizel gorivo, Italian: gasolio: An average diesel fuel should comprise in percentages, carbon 86–87; hydrogen 11.0–13.5; sulphur 0.5–2; oxygen and nitrogen 0.5–1.0. To secure low NOx emissions, it is essential that the amount of injected diesel fuel is very small.

diesel-fuelled (adj) (marine eng) na dizelski pogon: As the group went ashore, the diesel-fuelled heater located in the engine room was running and the radiators were noted to be on.

diesel generator (n) (marine eng) dizel-generator: Two diesel generators were sharing the electrical load and the engine speed had been reduced to 60 rpm ...

diesel oil (=DO) dizelsko gorivo, laka nafta, dizel: Low-, medium- and high-speed diesel engines are designed to burn marine diesel oil (ISO 8217, class DMB or BS 6843, class DMB) while low-speed. The engine was released for operation on marine diesel oil (ISO 8217, F-DMX to FDMB). The engine can be started up and manoeuvred on diesel oil or even a blend of diesel and heavy fuel oil.

digital shipping line (n) (logist, mar law) COMPARE digital fright forwarder Digital Shipping lines have consortiums and associations set up to improve their digital presence: 1) Maersk Line teamed up with IBM to create the TradeLens project, which is a blockchain technology in the global supply chain to enable trust between multiple trading partners including carriers, freight forwarders, customs, port authorities and more when transacting in a digitized global trade documentation process with Maersk Line, ZIM Lines and PIL as members currently.; 2) A rival to the above grouping consists of CMA CGM, Cosco Shipping (including OOCL), Evergreen Marine, and Yang Ming Line, representing about one-third of total global containership capacity. This consortium is based

disponent owner

/brodar raspolagatelj/: This is done by taking the ships they require on time charter or another form of long term lease known as a bareboat charter, in which event they may be referred to as the disponent owner. The definition of a disponent owner is “deemed to be the owner but not actually the owner”. The registered or disponent owner of the vessel named herein (or substitute) only shall be liable for any damage or loss due to any breach or non-performance of any obligation arising out of the contract of carriage, whether or not relating to the vessels seaworthiness. The person who hires a ship (or several ships) in bareboat charter or in time charter is called a ‘disponent owner’. If the commercial operation of the ship is entrusted to a managing company, then the manager is called ‘managing owner’.

http://www.maritimeknowhow.com/ Many ships today are owned by banks or finance/leasing companies who have no operational involvement whatever. In practice the lessee companies, referred to as ‘Disponent Owners’ or one of their subsidiary companies, may appear as the Manager of the ship. The disponent owner, reimbursed the head owner 50% of that sum under the Inter-Club Agreement (ICA).

https://safety4sea.com/ A person, such as a bareboat or time charterer, who, while not being the registered owner of a ship, nevertheless has the right to dispose of it (i.e. to control its commercial operation), notably by sub-chartering it to a third party. Although lacking title to the vessel, the disponent owner may have many of the rights and responsibilities of the owner.

Doppler frequency oscillator

Doppler effect: A change in the observed frequency of a wave, as of sound or light, occurring when the source and observer are in motion relative to each other, with the frequency increasing when the source and observer approach each other and decreasing when they move apart. The motion of the source causes a real shift in frequency of the wave, while the motion of the observer produces only an apparent shift in frequency. Also called Doppler shift.

after unloading the ship entered drydock to effect permanent repairs During the short passage to drydock, all tanks were monitored and the ballast pump was continuously discharging the ingress into the fore peak tank. In the drydock, it was observed that apart from the large hole punched in the shell plating in way of the fore peak tank, there was no other damage. With company’s and class approval, the vessel continued on its short passage towards the discharge port, where, after unloading, she entered drydock to effect permanent repairs The four main types of dry docking methods are as follows: floating dock, excavated dock, patent slip, ship lift After discharging cargo at Warrenpoint, the ship proceeded to Belfast dry dock, where a full inspection revealed extensive structural damage throughout the forward third of the hull with 26 penetrations in three compartments. MAIB Report 11/2018
The vessel was dry docked a week after the accident as part of the Continuous Class Survey schedule.

Dry docking is the removal of a ship from the water for inspection and repair of those parts of a ship that are below the water line. Putting a vessel into a dry dock for inspection, repair and maintenance.

During drydockings, which are required to be carried out periodically, certain mandatory classification society inspections are carried out and relevant certifications are issued. Drydockings for containerships are generally required once every three to five years. The main objective in carrying out dry docking is to ensure ships are operational and to maintain their class license. Dry docking is also required if a ship has sustained damage to the underwater structure due to grounding, collision or any other damage which will affect the water integrity of the ship's hull.

Both teams were able to locate the source of the fire at the main engine and it was soon put out using portable dry powder extinguishers.

For longer periods of time, it may be cost effective to leave your boat in dry storage.

Dwell time is the amount of time which cargo or ships, spend within a port. It is a key indicator of how efficiently a port is operating, how quickly cargo is flowing through its terminals and how long a ship is spending in port. The longer cargo is stuck in port, the more it costs shippers. (https://www.marinetraffic.com/blog/no-time-to-dwell/);

Typically, dwell time is the time taken for exports inside terminal gates to be loaded onto a ship and imports onto a truck or train. In addition to easing terminal congestion, shorter dwell times enable cargo owners to save on storage charges applied by port authorities. Dwell time doesn’t just impact shippers, but ship operators too.

Container vessels operate on schedules and a delay in any particular port is felt across the service. The shorter the dwell time, the lower the vessel and marine terminal operating costs.

https://www.marinetraffic.com/ Customs are working to reduce container dwell time at ports.

ECDIS (=Electronic Chart Display Information System) (n) (navig) ECDIS with adequate back-up arrangements may be accepted as complying with the up-to-date charts required by regulations V/19 and V/27 of the 1974 SOLAS Convention, as amended. - (IMO 232(82) Standards for electronic chart display and information system (ECDIS) sustav pomorskih karata s elektroničkim pokazivačem, informacijski sustav i prikaz elektroničkih karata, elektronički kartografski sustav, sustav ECDIS: The intended route had been prepared using the ship’s electronic chart display and information system (ECDIS) and the OOW selected the scale on the ECDIS display that closely aligned with the 12 nm range scale. The intended route had been prepared using the ship’s electronic chart display and information system (ECDIS) and the OOW selected the scale on the ECDIS display that closely aligned with the 12 nm range scale ... ECDIS was the vessel’s primary means of navigation and the units were networked with the ship’s radars and Automatic Identification System (AIS). www.gov.uk/maib The transition to Electronic Chart Display and Information System (ECDIS) set for 2025 is already underway, but this does not mean the end of backup paper charts, and hopefully not the end of the navigational skills associated with traditional pilotage. https://www.practical-sailor.com/ The ship’s electronic chart display and information system (ECDIS) recorded the wind from the west at 15 knots. https://safety4sea.com/ ECDIS chart elektronička karta

ECDIS display /ˈɛkdis/ (n) (navig) ECDIS is a digital navigational chart system which can be used instead of paper charts, making the navigator’s workload easier with its automatic capabilities such as route planning, route monitoring, automatic ETA computation and electronic navigation chart updating. The International Maritime Organisation (IMO) made the carriage of ECDIS mandatory under Safety of Life at Sea (SOLAS) Chapter V (Safety of Navigation) for most large vessels of 3000 GT or more, on 1 July 2018. (https://www.marineelectronics.com/news/ecdis-maritime-accident-255821) prikaz elektroničke karte: The OOW looked at the ECDIS display and reported to the master that there was no cause for concern. A few minutes later, after having been contacted by VTS, the OOW zoomed in on the ECDIS display and realised that the vessel was aground. At 0240, the 3/O noticed that the ship’s speed shown on the ECDIS display had reduced to 7.4kts. Using such tools, ECDIS can help to establish the best time-saving route planning within pre-defined 'safety corridors' although .... a one-to-one check of the entire route from berth to berth must still be carried out.

The ship was equipped with an ECDIS, though it was not in use at the time of the accident as its chart with an ECDIS, though it was not in use at the time of the accident as its chart licence expired.

echo /ˈekəʊ/ (n) (navig) the reflection of a radar signal from an object; the display of the reflected signal on the radar screen jeka, odraz (na radarskom ekranu): the target ship’s echo appeared on the radar at 3 miles multiple echoes višestruke jeke (od jednog objekta): Multiple echoes can occur when a strong, short-range echo is received from a target, echo strength jačina jeke, false echo lažna jeka, unwanted echo neželjena jeka, lažna jeka, sea echo smetnje od mora i valova, smetnje s mora, indirect echo indirektna jeka: Indirect echoes may be returned from either a passing ship or from a reflecting surface on your own ship, such as a stack, echo enhancement pojačavanje odraza / jeke, echo stretch izdužavanje odraza, pojačavanje odraza, echo expansion povećanje odraza, echo strength jačina odraza: The echo strength depends on the peak power of the transmitted pulse and the characteristics of the target, weak echo slab odraz: Remember! The weakest echoes, or those not seen at all may be the most dangerous.

displayed echo (on the radar screen) jeka prikazana na radarskom zaslonu: At 1219:43, with the VRM touching the displayed echo of the corner of the quay.

echosounder (=echo-sounder) (n) (navig) An instrument which transmits sound through the water and receives reflected signals from the bottom, and which, by measuring the elapsed time, computes and displays the depth. (http://www.seatalk.info/cgi-bin/nautical-marine-sailing-dictionary)

ultrazvučni dubinomjer check echosounder provjeriti zvučni dubinomjer, hydroacoustic echosounder 1 ultrazvučni dubinomjer: 2 eholot, switch on / off the echosounder uključiti / isključiti ultrazvučni dubinomjer: The vessel’s electronic navigation equipment were functioning properly but the echo sounder had been switched off shortly after leaving the port echo stretch kontrola na radaru za izduživanje manjih odraza / jeka, kontrola za pojačavanje slabijih odraza / jeka na radaru: The object of echo stretch or expansion is to make small targets look bigger.

echo trail (n) Echo trails are the afterglow of target echoes that represent their movements relative to own ship. They are useful for monitoring or zoom or shift is activated. trag cilja na radarskom ekranu, zadržana slika na radarskom zaslonu (nakon promjene područja): Echo trails are useful for assessing target movement and collision possibility eclipse /ˈklɪps/ (n) (navig) an interval of darkness between appearances of a light tama, pomrčina, ekipsa, period tame (plovidbene oznake)

eco-friendly ship (=eco-ship) (n) (environ, marine eng, nav arch) ekološki prihvatljiv brod: the use of resources and energy to transport people and goods by ship and specifically concerns the reduction in such resources and energy in order to preserve the global environment from GHGs (greenhouse gas) and environmental pollutants generated by ships.

electrical /ˈlektrɪkəl/ (adj) (electr) električni electrical engineer inženjer elektrotehnike, elektroinženjer electrical cable (n) (electr) električni kabel: The fire was caused either by a short circuit where the electrical cables were draped over the non-continuous bulkheads, or by an overheating electrical device belonging to one of the crew.

electrical conductivity (n) (electr) električka provodljivost, električka vodljivost electrical fault (n) (electr) električni kvar: All the indications suggest that the fire was probably caused by an electrical fault on the bilge pump or high bilge level float switch circuit which were the only circuits that were live while the boat was at the mooring. Lack of attention, spontaneous combustion and electrical faults are the major causes of shipboard fire. Tender vessel caught fire due to a suspected electrical fault. (https://safety4sea.com/) electrical motor (n) (electr) elektromotor: Root cause/contributory factors Incorrect layout of sea-water piping directly over steering pump electrical motors; The electrical motors and components were successfully cleaned out with solvents, dried out and made fully operational in the anchorage by ship's staff ...

electrical officer časnik za električne uređaje i instalacije, brodski elektro-časnik: Electrical engineer is responsible for maintenance of all the electrical equipment on a ship such as motors, switchboards, fire detectors, navigational lights, batteries etc. He assists ship's deck officer and engineer in all kind of electrical malfunctions. The third engineer, who may or may not hold a certificate of competency, keeps the 2x2 watch and where an electrical officer (electrotechnical officer) is not carried usually maintains the ships electrical equipment. In our fleet, we now require electrical officers (E/O) to examine carefully all radar antennas, cable penetrations and junction boxes on the compass deck and masts once a month ...

electrical panel (n) (electr) strujna ploča, električni ormarić: A lifeboat should never be hoisted by operating the winch motor from a remote electrical panel as this may by-pass the safety cut-outs, can result in loss of control due to communication difficulties and also pose an electrocution hazard.

electrical plant (n) 1 (electr) električni uređaj; 2 električno postrojenje, elektrana electrical power (n) (electr) električna struja, električno napajanje: The heavy seas washing over the deck rendered about 130 reefer containers without electrical power. The engine room responded promptly to a 'low insulation' alarm and upon seeing the sea-water leak in the steering gear room, immediately turned off the electrical power to the motors and informed the bridge. Electrical power was isolated throughout the ship with the exception of the emergency fire pump, which had been started to provide fire-fighting water. At the time, all electrical power was being supplied by the main engine driven shaft generator, and so with the main engine shutting down, all electrical power was also lost.

electrical shortcut (n) (electr) kratki spoj: This caused an electrical short (cut), resulting in sparking and leading to high temperatures which caused damage to the cable insulation and fittings.

electrical socket (n) (electr) električna utičnica: Overloaded electrical socket and defective adaptor.

electrical spares (n) (sailing/boating/yachting, electr) pričuvni dijelovi za električne instalacije fuses osigurači, bulbs žaruljice, terminal fittings stopice, soldering iron and solder nit za lemljenje i lemilica, tape - insulating and self-amalgamating vrpce - izolirajuće i samostapajuće, battered for torches baterijski ulošći za svjetiljke, distilled water for topping upo batteries destilirana voda za dolijevanje akumulatorskih ćeliјa, hidrometer (for checking battery cells) hidrometar (за provjeru akumulatorskih ćeliјa), connecting blocks spojnice electrical spark (n) (electr) električna iskra: Do check the Product and Material the halogen lamp. Either the hot lens or bulb, Safety Data sheets of materials to or an electrical spark from the lamp ignited identify if there are dangers associated the mixture, causing the explosion.

electric storm (n) (meteorol) oluja s električnim pražnjenjem, električna oluja: elines for completing the ship/shore safety checklist: The operations should be suspended and all deck and vent openings closed on the approach of an electrical storm.
electrical supply (n) (electr) napajanje električnom energijom: About 40 minutes after leaving the berth the ship experienced a series of short power failures which interrupted the steering gear electrical supplies.
electrical system (n) (electr) električni sustavi: A complete failure of the vessel’s electrical system with the navigation equipment and the radio set is considered probable in view of the arrangement of the load batteries. After salvage, the main engine could be restarted, but all the electrical systems were damaged.
electrical tape (n) (electr) izolacijska traka, električna traka, električna vrpca: Following the incident the school’s instructors examined the flare firing mechanism and decided to place a band of electrical tape around it to help prevent inadvertent firing of the flare.
electrical wiring (n) (electr) električni vodovi, električno ožičenje, električna mreža: The insulation of electrical wiring should be checked at regular intervals. A short circuit occurred in the electrical wiring.
electric arc welding (n) (electr) elektrolučno zavarivanje: A standby vessel was in port waiting for her next tasking, so the opportunity was taken to carry out an electric arc welding repair to the bedplate of an alternator located in the engine room.
electric boat /iˈlektrɪk/ (n) (sailing/boating/yachting) brodica na električni pogon electric charge (n) (electr) električni naboj electric circuit (n) (electr) strujni krug: Check that electric circuits are in good condition and that fuel pipes are free from chaffing.
electric device (n) (electr) električni uređaj, električni aparat electric drive (n) (nav arch) električni pogon: The century-old Amsterdam canal boat Gerarda Johanna looks like a classic with wood paneling, but beneath its floorboards lies a high-tech underbelly: rows of lithium ion batteries, 66 in all, with an electric drive train powering its propeller. https://gcaptain.com/amsterdams-boats-go-electric-ahead-of-2025-diesel-ban/electric ferry (n) (nav arch) električni trajekt, trajekt na električni pogon: When delivered later in 2019, the 70m electric ferry will be able to take up to 550 passengers and 75 cars on up to 3,600 annual trips in the rough waters between Landeyjahöfn on the mainland and the Westman Island, covering eight-mile route in about 45 minutes. https://www.marinelink.com/news/iceland-electric-ferry-powered-abb-462829 The new electric ferry will feature a large battery pack (3000kWh) and is designed to operate in a fully electric mode for most of the time, with onshore charging in both harbors, with an estimated average charge time of 30 minutes. https://www.marinelink.com/news/iceland-electric-ferry-powered-abb-462829 During particularly challenging weather conditions, when the consumption of battery power may exceed the available energy, this electric ferry will use its diesel-electric generator set.
electric generation (n) (electr) generiranje električne energije, proizvodnja električne energije, proizvodnja električne struje electric generator (n) (electr) električni generator, generator električne struje D.C. electric generator generator istosmjerne struje electric heater (n) (electr) električni grijać: The oil is heated by steam (although thermal oil or electric heaters are used on other systems).

electrician /ɪlekˈtrɪʃən/ (n) (electr, marine eng) električar (brodski), struja

electricity (n) (electr) elektricitet, električna struja generate electricity proizvodi električnu struju

electric motor (n) (electr) elektromotor: There is at least one good solution where the boat has a single point hoisting/lowering system with an electric motor. The turning gear on a turbine installation is a reversible electric motor driving a gearwheel which meshes into the high-pressure turbine primary pinion. An electric motor can provide a drive with very low-vibration characteristics, a quality valued for warships, research vessels and cruise ships ...

electric motor (n) (sailing/boating/yachting) električni pogonski motor (za brodice, jahte) inboard electric motor nutarnji pogonski električni motor:
The VETUS brushless electric motor does not use carbon brushes, which makes it whisper-silent and maintenance-free. At low revolutions, the efficiency of this brushless motor is considerably higher than conventional electric motors equipped with carbon brushes. The VETUS brushless motor also has a very favourable power to weight ratio. Another remarkable feature of the brushless VETUS electric motor is the very low number of revolutions (max. 1,250 r.p.m.), which means that it can be coupled directly to the propeller shaft, without the need for a reduction gearbox.

electric power (n) 1 (electr) električna struja: Loss of the ship’s own propulsion, electric power, steerage and manoeuvrability could be foreseen and eventually occurred.; 2 električna energija provide electric power opskrbiti električnom energijom

electric propulsion (n) (nav arch) električni pogon: Diesel electric propulsion allows the engines to be placed wherever is most suitable, as they no longer have to be aligned with reduction gearing .. Another example of the flexibility facilitated by an electric propulsion system is a semi-submersible rig installation whose gensets are mounted on the main deck and propulsion motors in the pon GE will provide the electric propulsion system with his partners Imesa and Nidec that will bring operational efficiency and excellent manoeuvrability to Seaside EVO largest cruise ships. GE’s electric propulsion solution consists of propulsion controls along with transformers, variable frequency drive (VFD) technology, propulsion motors and distribution transformers.

electric pump (n) (electr, marine eng) električna pumpa, električna crpka, električna sisaljka: After fitting the new propeller, the contractor cast off and, while leaving the marina, pumped the bilges using the electric pump.

electric ray (n) (fishing) COMPARE ray Lat. Torpedinidae; Lat. Torpedo marmorata drhtulja, drhtulja šarulja, mramorna drhtulja, tremol electric shock /ɪˌlɛktrɪk/ (n) (electr) električni udar, elektrošok: Another crew member who went to his aid also received an electric shock from the same source and sustained a serious injury.

electric welding /ɪˌlɛktrɪk/ (n) (electr) električno zavarivanje: ... a lack of maintenance or bad watchkeeping practices. They are usually caused by fuel spills, overheating components or careless use of electric welding or gas brazing gear. The officers became curious, seeing the electric welding cable leading from the engine room along the upper deck, and followed it to the hot work site in hold no. 3 electric winch (n) (cargo handling, seamanship): The bosun operated the electric winch briefly, and the manual winding handle, in the hands of the two other crewmen, swung rapidly and struck one of them on the head.

electronic aids (n) (navig) elektronička navigacijska pomagala: The bulk carrier’s officer of the watch did not effectively use the electronic aids available to maintain a proper lookout. In most collisions and groundings, electronic aids such as ARPA, CPA and TCPA alarms, waypoint alarms and depth alarms had not been used.

electronic bearing line (=EBL) (n) (navig) elektroničko smjeralo: We have monitored or plotted their radar targets using the cursor or ARPA facility; taken a series of compass bearings using the radar’s electronic bearing line; and/or taken a series of visual compass bearings using the azimuth ring. Facilities such as automatic plotting, electronic bearing lines, variable range markers and radar guard alarms, are normally provided to assist the OOW. He checked the vessel was on heading for the next alteration of course position, which was indicated by an electronic bearing line on the plotter.

electronic bearing marker /ɪˌlektroʊˈmærkər/ (=EBM) (n) (navig) elektronička oznaka azimuta: The ARPA is non-functional and the electronic bearing marker is about 20 degrees out.

electronic bill of lading /ɪˌlektroʊˈbɪl əv ˈleɪdɪŋ/ (=e-Bill of Lading) (mar law, shipping econ, logist) elektronička teretnica: India is now looking for ways to implement electronic bills of lading, electronic delivery orders, certificates of origin, letters of credit, and other trade documentation across all export-import transactions in India. https://safety4sea.com

Electronic Cargo Tracking Note (=ECTN) (n) (logist) If you are shipping to, or through one of the countries listed (e.g. listed African countries) then you will need special waiver certificate documentation in order to clear customs.

https://www.logisticsglossary.com/term/electronic-cargo-tracking-note/ Potvrda o oslobađanju od podnošenja dokumentacije za carinski pregled (za robu u tranzitu): These waiver certificates (also known as ECTN – Electronic Cargo Tracking Note) are required by certain African countries to effectively control, supervise and manage import / export traffic to the country. https://www.logisticsglossary.com/term/electronic-cargo-tracking-note/electronic chart /ɪˌlektroʊˈnɑːtʃər/ (n) (navig) The electronic chart displays the vessel’s ‘real-time’ position, course and speed. It also carries out different complex functions to help improve the bridge crew’s ‘situational awareness’ and can meld together radar imagery, ship information, chart activity and AIS information all into one view.

(https://www.marineelectronics.com/news/ecdis-maritime-accident–255821) elektronička karta: The mate was alone on the bridge, navigating with the aid of an electronic chart system while seated on the wheelhouse chair. The intended route had been prepared using the ship’s electronic chart display and information system (ECDIS) and the OOW selected the scale on the ECDIS display that closely aligned with the 12 nm range scale set He was primarily using an electronic chart plotter with a GPS input, although he had two radars and a magnetic compass at his disposal.

Electronic Chart Display and Information System (=ECDIS) (n) (navig)

elektronički navigacijsko-informacijski sustav, sustav ECDIS: The OOW was monitoring the vessel’s position on the Electronic Chart Display (ECDIS) but was not plotting the position on the paper chart. We have developed the Electronic Navigational Charts for the Strait (and our port) which can be used together with the Electronic Chart Display and Information System (ECDIS) for real-time navigation without the use of paper charts. were fully compliant with International Maritime Organization (IMO) requirements. The ship was fitted with two independent Electronic Chart Display and Information System (ECDIS) units.

Electronic Data Interchange (=EDI) exchange of information through an electronic format elektronička razmjena podataka

electronic device (n) (electr) elektronička naprava, elektronički uređaj: It is recommended to thoroughly check the vessel’s equipment, especially for the arrangement, configuration and adjustment of electronic devices so that errors in installation can be recognized in time and if need be already be dealt with during the sea trial.

electronic engine control (=EEC) (n) (marine eng) Microcomputer coupled with sensors and controls for fuel, coolant, and other on board systems, as well as self diagnostic ability. (http://www.marinedieseleurope.com/) elektroničko upravljanje strojem electronic navigation (n) any method of position fixing using electronic means, including: radio navigation, radar navigation, satellite navigation. elektronička navigacija: Although she was equipped with an Electronic Navigation System, which would have provided waypoint alarms, this was not in use because the crew were not sufficiently trained in its use.

electronic navigation aids /ɪˈlɛktrənɪk/ (n) (navig) elektronička navigacijska pomagala: It is essential that all mariners are not only trained in the operation of electronic navigation aids, but understand the weaknesses and how these aids should be used as a decision support system rather than a decisionmaking system.

electronic navigational chart /ɪˈlɛktrənɪk/ (n) (navig) compiled from a database of information this chart presents the OOW with a vector chart. Information is built up in layers so the OOW can decide to exclude certain features in order to keep the view clear and simple elektronička navigacijska karta, elektronička karta: Using an electronic navigational chart within ECDIS, the OOW can monitor the safety corridor, safety contours, their own vessel GPS and its vector, any other vessels AIS and vector, the tide vectors and exploit the customizable menu. https://www.marineelectronics.com/news/ecdis-maritime-accident-255821

electronic navigation equipment (n) (nav arch, navig) elektronički navigacijski uređaji, elektronička navigacijska oprema: The vessel’s electronic navigation equipment, which included the electronic chart display and information system (ECDIS), radar and the bridge navigational watch alarm system (BNWAS), were functioning correctly.

electronic position fixing system /ɪˈlɛktrənɪk/ (n) (navig) susvat elektroničkog određivanja pozicije: Navigators should use all available means to check the position of their vessel, but they must regularly verify the accuracy of positions displayed by electronic position fixing systems by reference to visual bearings and transits whenever available.

electronic range and bearing line (=ERBL) (n) (navig) elektroničko smjeralo za mjerenje udaljenosti i smjerova

elevation /elˈiːvəʃən/ (n) 1 visina: At an elevation angle of about 35 degrees and a height of about 40 metres, the pipe suddenly slipped out of the grab and fell with great force back onto the deck ... the satellite is at such an elevation for Inmarsat that the signal from the ship is beamed up at a perfect angle to intercept the GPS antenna.; 2 presjek, profil side elevation bočni profil, bokocrt, pogled sa strane: Side elevation of typical ballast hold shows how lamellar tear is caused; 3 okomita vertikalna projekcija; 4 vertikalni profil elevation of focal plane above datum (n) (navig) visina žarišta svjetla iznad srednje razine mora visina svjetla elevator /ˈelə vɛltər/ (n) 1 (cargo handling) elevator, pneumatski uređaj (za ukrcaj/iskrcaj tereta u silosu): Elevators (US) or silos are normally associated with grain. They may be operated by pneumatic suction which sucks the grain out of the ship’s hold.; 2 nagnuti transporter: Some hoppers have an elevator for depositing the cargo into heaps on the quay side for later onward transportation.
elongated spreader produženo gazište pilotskih ljestava embark /ɪmˈbɑːk/ (v) to go on board a ship; to go aboard ship preparatory to sailing; to board the ship ukrcati (peljara): The vessel arrived at the pilot boarding point and embarked the pilot. A fast modern container vessel was preparing to embark a pilot during the early hours of the morning. A small cargo vessel inbound towards the channel was preparing to embark a pilot via a ladder on its port side, as had been directed by the VTS. The harbourmaster’s guidance to VTS operators was that inbound vessels should not pass the Embarkation deck without incident. The two deckhands moved along the launch’s port side to the Embarkation area. The bridge team became distracted and lost their situational awareness while maneuvering the ship to rendezvous with the pilot vessel or while preparing to embark or disembark a pilot. The vessel tied up, bows to the pier with engines at idle, to embark passengers, reducing the gap between the mooring barge and the stern of the passenger vessel to about 30 metres.

EMCIP (=European Marine Casualty Information Platform) a database and a data distribution system operated by EMSA. Europska platforma za izvješćivanje o pomorskim nesrećama i nezgodama (pr i EMSA-i): EMCIP provides the means to store data and information related to marine casualties involving all types of ships and occupational accidents. It also enables the production of statistics and analysis of the technical, human, environmental and organisational factors involved in accidents at sea. Furthermore, it allows Member States to report investigation findings to the IMO-GISIS system directly and without any duplication of effort. http://ems.europa.eu/emcip.html EMCIP Model

Engineering Department (n) (navy) COMPARE engine-room department

Engineering Department’s mission is to maintain and safely operate O‘KANE’s engineering plant in order to support O‘KANE’s primary mission as an instrument of national policy. The primary responsibilities of Engineering Department are to safely and efficiently provide propulsion, and generate and distribute electrical power throughout the ship. Additional responsibilities include: Fresh water distillation, steering control, damage control, drainage, and sewage treatment. tehnička služba (ratnog broda): služba stroja (ratnog broda) A Division Auxiliaries Division maintains almost all of the ship’s auxiliary engineering equipment on board the ship. Known as A-Gang, the Enginemen (ENs) are responsible for the ship’s air conditioning plants, fresh water distillers, potable water system, sewage system, steering system, and galley equipment. odjel pomoćnih motora i uređaja (ratnog broda), E Division Electrical Division is primarily tasked with maintaining the ship’s electrical distribution systems. Additionally, the Electrician Mates (EMs) are responsible for shipboard lighting, cathodic protection, casualty power, degaussing systems, laundry service equipment, galley equipment, and electrical tool issue and maintenance. elektrotehnički odjel, MP Division The Gas Turbine Systems Mechanical Technicians (GSMs) and Gas Turbine Systems Electrical Technicians (GSEs) are primarily responsible for main propulsion and electrical power generation. The GSMs maintain four LM-2500 Gas Turbine Engines, and all associated equipment, in two Main Engine Rooms, necessary to provide and control propulsion. odjel za turbinski pogon, R Division Repair Division is home to a mix of Damage Controlmen (DCs), Hull Technicians (HTs), and damage control petty officers. It is primarily responsible for maintaining the O'KANE's structural integrity and repair equipment. The Damage Control Assistant (DCA) provides general and specific training on proper fire-fighting, flooding, and other casualty response techniques. Every Sailor must first be a fire-fighter. odjel za popravke (u stroju i na brodu)

engine foundation (n) (marine eng) temelj stroja: The bedplate is mounted on chocks and is securely bolted to the engine foundation plate on which it sits and which forms part of the structure of the hull. These forces, if not in themselves necessarily damaging, create objectionable vibration and noise in the engine foundations, and through them to the ship (or building) in which the engine is operating.

engine frame (n) (marine eng) stalak motora, okvir motora: The camshafts are mounted in bearing bushes fitted in bores in the engine frame. Lubricating oil for the main bearings is supplied through holes drilled in the engine frame.

engine housing (n) (marine eng) kućište motora: The crankshaft damper is mounted outside the engine housing for optimum cooling and accessibility; bolted covers and replaceable nylon bearings permit rebuilding of the damper on site.

engine indicator (n) (marine eng) The Engine Indicator is used to record the cylinder pressure of an engine and piston travel in an X - Y graph, where pressure forms the vertical axis and piston travel forms the horizontal axis. pokazivač indicirane snage stroja, indikator motora: Engine indicator is the device used to take the indicator diagram, which can be considered as a 'stethoscope' for diesel engines. engine indicator diagram dijagram indikatora motora, engine indicator cock pipac indikatora motora: This involved the fuel being shut off, the main engine indicator cocks being left open, the turning gear being disengaged, the air receiver valves and main air start valve being shut, ...

engine inlet (n) (sailing/boating/yachting, marine eng) dovod za motor, usis rashladne vode za motor: Approximately two-thirds of the flow pass through a HT circuit and returns directly to the engine inlet, while the remainder is fed into a thermostatically controlled LT circuit.
From the main engine inlet rail the fuel enters each fuel pump (one per cylinder). The air is cooled before passing to the engine inlet manifold or scavenge air receiver.

Engine International Air Pollution Prevention Certificate (n) (mar law, marine eng, nav arch, environ) Međunarodna potvrda o sprječavanju onečišćenja zraka za motor engine load (n) (marine eng) opterećenje motora, opterećenje stroja: Pulsating compressor noise, typically registered at around 30–50 per cent engine load, can be an issue due to today’s higher power outputs. The maximum efficiency measured at near-70 per cent engine load was around 69 per cent.

engine log (n) (marine eng) dnevnik stroja: Any such loss of water must be recorded in the Engine Log Book and reported to the Chief Engineer. The chief engineer will examine the Engine Log when he has time.

engine maintenance (n) (marine eng, sailing/boating/yachting) održavanje stroja, održavanje motora: A planned lifeboat drill was carried out on a coastal tanker while she was alongside in port for engine maintenance.

engine manufacturer (n) (marine eng) proizvođač motora: By working with a prospective operator, the engine manufacturer is then able to make an accurate assessment of the maintenance costs. The ship remained at the anchorage as the main engine manufacturers were arranged to attend the vessel to repair the air start valve.

engine-mounted (adj) (marine eng) ugrađen na stroj(u), montiran na stroj(u): As a result, the engine-mounted fuel pump had sheared off and the fuel pump casing was fractured.

engine operation (n) (marine eng) rad motora, rad stroja, upravljanje strojem, rukovanje strojem: The resulting flexibility allows engine operation to be adjusted and optimized for fuel economy or low NOx emissions.

engine orders (n) (marine eng, navig, safety, ship & line handling) = propulsion orders zapovijedi stroju, Italian:ordini andatura macchine: Any engine order given should be repeated by the person operating the bridge telegraph(s) and the officer of the watch should ensure the order is ca At 1015, the transfer of stores was completed and an engine order of 80 rpm was executed.

For engine outputs of up to 8000 kW, only one turbocharger is used.

The controllable injection timing (CIT) pumps also ensure that engine performance is improved at the service load. The computer-controlled fuel injection system opens up possibilities to optimize engine performance, thanks to the freedom to choose key parameters: injection timing, injection pressure independent of engine speed, maximum injection quantity...

Using full rudder and engine power, and transmitting appropriate signals on the air horn and VHF radio, the master just managed to turn the ship's head into the wind and... An engine power range from 20 000 kW to 28 000 kW per turbocharger is covered by the TPL-91B. Limit engine power to reduce greenhouse gas emissions from international shipping, technical measures to limit engine power are among the ideas being considered to reduce carbon dioxide (CO2) from the existing fleet. After several days at sea a serious engine problem occurred in number 7 cylinder.

engine readiness (n) (navig) spremnost stroja za pokretanje / manovru

state of engine readiness stanje spremnosti stroja za manovru, stupanj spremnosti stroja za manovru engine ready for immediate manoeuvre (n) (navig) stroj spreman za neposrednu manovru: Own ship quite rightly in my opinion had her engine ready for manoeuvre, but, does not appear to have had any intention to use it.

engine repairs (n) (marine eng) popravci na stroju: My technical department at the time was fully engaged in carrying out a major engine repair ... The sea conditions were slight and the vessel continued to drift in a southeasterly direction towards the Moroccan coast while engine repair work continued.

engine revolution (n) (marine eng) broj okretaja stroja: About 10 minutes afterwards, the main engine revolutions dropped from 1400 rpm to about 1100 rpm.

engine room (=engine-room; engineroom) (n) 1 (marine eng) = machinery room = machinery strojarnica, brodska strojarnica: The duty engineer entered the engine room at 06:50 to man the engine room. The chief engineer entered the engine room at the upper level, without BA, to guide the fire brigade.; 2 (marine eng) strojarnica, Italian:sala macchine; locale motore engine room access (n) (nav arch, marine eng) prilaz strojarnici: At 1450, the engine room alarm panel repeater sounded in his cabin, so he immediately ran the short distance to the engine room access where the panel was situated.

As the lift was being prepared, the engine room alarm sounded.

The duty engineer opened the overboard valve to prevent the system from potentially overflowing into the engine room bilges.

Smoke was filtering through the engine room bulkhead and filling the wheelhouse, making it impossible to use the main VHF radio set.

The master decided it would be necessary to operate the engine room CO2 system to extinguish the fire.

An exhausted engine room crew once again opened, cleaned and boxed up the sea suctions (again filled with tiny fish) and the ship sailed from the terminal without any delay.

The Engine Department onboard a merchant ship is responsible for all maintenance and repairs of engines, electric motors, pumps, winches and other mechanical and electrical equipment. Job positions, on board a (US / Croatian, etc.) ship, within this department include Chief Engineer, 2nd, 3rd and 4th Engineer, Trainee Engineer, Chief Mechanic, Mechanic, Fitter, Oiler, Wiper and Engine Utility Man. Engine-Room Department - The modern ship’s propulsive unit, whether steam turbine or diesel engine, is run on oil, and the engine-room department is composed of a team of engineer officers and ratings controlled by the chief engineer, who ranks after the master. The modern ship’s propulsive unit, whether steam turbine or diesel engine, is run on oil, and the engine-room department is composed of a team of engineer officers and ratings controlled by the chief engineer, who ranks after the master.

He shut the engine room door, informed the master of the fire and recommended that both main engines be shut down. It was initially assumed that the smoke was coming from the open engine room door. He shut the engine room door, informed the master of the fire and recommended that both main engines be shut down.

The fuel is supplied to the injectors through drillings in the cylinder head, dispensing with high-pressure fuel lines and removing a potential cause of engine-room fire. Engine speed is controlled by a mechanical or electronic governor with hydraulic actuator. The ‘heart’ of the system was a microprocessor to which the actual engine speed and crankshaft position were transmitted as output signals. Full load can be accepted swiftly and smoothly at any engine speed, says EMD, and a 10 per cent overload capability can be exploited for two out of every 24 h of running. A reduction in engine speed compared with the BL550 limited the mean piston speed and yielded the increased output with virtually the same brake mean effective pressure. Although a late order to increase engine speed and helm was given, the vessel made contact with the buoy.

Engine telegraph (marine eng) strojarski telegraf: At 2340, the master moved the engine telegraph from ‘dead slow ahead’ to ‘slow ahead’; the tanker’s speed was about 2kts and it remained on an easterly heading. A load programme led to a delay between the setting of the engine telegraph and the engine achieving the speed intended. The Master was quickly on the bridge and moved the engine telegraph to stop. If the engine telegraph printer for some reason does not function, movements shall be recorded manually, in this case in the Bridge and Engine Bell Books. The ship’s engine telegraph was set to full ahead.

Engine trials (n) (marine eng) strojarske probne vožnje, strojarske pokusne vožnje: it would have been prudent to retain at least one escorting tug; 2 The outward pilot was apparently unaware that the vessel was intending to conduct engine trials off port limits (OPL) and was scheduled to return and anchor in the waiting area;

Exit (n) (safety) izlaz: The ferry’s exit from the harbour was delayed. exit door izlazna vrata, Engineers and ratings should be fully familiar with all exit doors of the engine room so that in an emergency, they can evacuate safely. The exit channel from the terminal had a draught restriction and sailing was subject to a narrow tidal window. Vessels with a draught of over 10m must enter and exit the channel between the No1 buoys.

Before you enter a channel, a harbor, a port, or any confined or restricted space you must have an exit plan.

If a stevedore is injured on board, the vessel will be subjected to a very harsh inquiry/investigation and the authorities will likely exonerate the stevedore company of any blame and instead unfairly hold the ship liable for damages.

The gases expand forcing the piston down on the power stroke. The liner will expand more and is free to expand diametrically and lengthwise. The clear description of the accidents, the analysis and conclusions, enable seamen to expand their knowledge.

A major difference with the Miller cycle compared with a normal diesel cycle is the decreased compression due to the additional expansion of the cylinder load after IVC before BDC.

The company investigation found that the rupture of the expansion bellows was caused by an overpressure in the pump system between the suction valve and the delivery valve.

After slowing down, the leak was located in the expansion piece between the manifold and the blower in the top inlet, an extensive fracture of the bottom of one of corrugation.

The scavenge air pressure, exhaust gas temperature and compression, combustion and expansion pressures are continuously monitored.

The cycle efficiency is a function of the compression ratio (or more correctly the effective expansion ratio of the gas–air mixture after combustion). Slow or late combustion of fuel during the expansion stroke commonly referred to as afterburning may cause the engine to lose power considerably. The opening of the exhaust valve can be delayed about 15°, thereby lengthening the expansion stroke and improving the efficiency and reducing the fuel consumption.

expansion tank (n) (nav arch) overflow tanks used to provide for expansion, overflow, and replenishment of oil in stowage or cargo tanks ekspanzijski tank, ekspanzioni tank: A header or expansion tank is placed at a sufficient height to allow the venting and water make-up in the system.

expansion valve (n) (marine eng) ekspanzijski ventil, prigušni ventil: It was reported that while this system was operating, the piping near the expansion valve began constricting flow due to freezing hydrates.

expel /ɪkˈspleɪ/ (v) 1 istjerati, odstraniti; 2 istiskivati (tlačenjem): Intermittent rotation of exhaust valves is caused by the flow of burnt gases expelled from the cylinder. i.e., lower piston, so allowing air under pressure, which is delivered to the scavenge space by the turbocharger, to flow through the cylinder and expel the remaining burnt gases. As the piston moves up the cylinder, the hot gases (consisting mostly of nitrogen, carbon dioxide, water vapour and unused oxygen) are expelled from the cylinder.

expenditure izdatak, trošak: As a result of the ship’s staff’s not observing the maker’s maintenance instructions and poor engineering practice, the company incurred an unplanned expenditure of nearly US$ 100,000.

Facilities facilitate her positioning.

As the boat had to approach stern first in order to be picked up, two lines were passed to the crew to facilitate her positioning.

This was to facilitate easy access for the ship's personnel to continuously monitor the after-draft while cargo loading was nearing completion.

These facilities facilitate her positioning.

The water has to be properly treated before discharge into the sea, and the sludge must be disposed of at reception facilities.

The vessel hit the quay, and then the link span, causing significant damage to both the ferry and the port facilities.

The ARPA facility would have made this task easy.

F.C.A. (=free carrier- (named place) (n) (mar law, shipping econ) Free Carrier means that the seller fulfils his obligation to deliver when he has handed over the goods, cleared for export, into the charge of the carrier named by the buyer at the named place or point. If no precise point is indicated by the buyer, the seller may choose within the place or range stipulated where the carrier shall take the goods into his charge. When, according to commercial practice, the seller’s assistance is required in making the contract with the carrier (such as in rail or air transport) the seller may act at the buyer’s risk and expense.; Free Carrier (named place): the seller hands over the goods, cleared for export, into the custody of the first carrier (named by the buyer) at the named place. This term is suitable for all modes of transport, including carriage by air, rail, road, and containerised / multi-modal transport.

http://www.tkmglobal.net/index.html; an incoterm (per 2010 Incoterms®) that requires the seller to clear the goods for export and to either: deliver the goods to the buyer at the buyer’s premises or deliver the goods to the buyer at another named place.

F.C.L. (=full container load) (n) (mar law, shipping econ) ANTONYM LCL
COMPARE container load Full Container Load – means that the container has cargo that is shipped by one shipper for delivery to one consignee. FCL is one of the Container Service Types in shipping. In a FCL shipment the shipper usually packs its goods in the container and seals it.; sav teret u kontejneru glasi na istoga primatelja; Quantity of cargo, which fills a shipping container to capacity, either by weight or cubic measurement.; an ocean shipment in which the cargo occupies a full container (of any size) izravna kontejnerska pošiljka, direktna kontejnerska pošiljka: FCL is cheaper than LCL LCL costs more than FCL per unit of freight. That’s because freight agents prefer a full container load rather than to figure out how to bundle many LCL shipments in a full container. FCL gets delivered more quickly than LCL

FCL allowance (n) (mar law, shipping econ) Deduction from the FCL freight provided by a shipping line or liner conference to a shipper who loads a minimum number of tons or cubic meters of cargo into a shipping container. There may be various allowances depending on the degree of utilization of the container. Also known as utilization allowance. popust na vozarini za puni kontejner / FCL (popust najvećem krcatelju za teret u jednom kontejneru)

FCL/FCL (n) (shipping econ) Term used to describe a container freight rate whereby the shipper is responsible for packing of the container and the shipper or receiver, as the case may be, is responsible for the unpacking. FCL/FCL, vozarina za puni kontejner u kojoj je krcatelj odgovoran za pakovanje, a primatelj tereta za raspakiranje kontejnera feathering (n) (sailing/boating/yachting) Sailing a fine directional line between two points of sail, usually close hauled and irons http://www.apsltd.com/aps-advisor/sailing-terms-glossary/jedrenje feathering mechanism (n) (sailing/boating/yachting) mehanizam elastičnog propelera feathering propeller /ˈfeðəriŋ/ (n) (sailing/boating/yachting) COMPARE folding propeller COMPARE fixed propeller Feathering props are one of the best propellers for sailing boats when mixing performance under sail and power. they get their name due to the feathering blades, which align with water flow when in neutral.

skloponi prekretni propeler (s krilima u liniji kretanja jedrilice), skloponi propeler s promjenjivim korakom lopatica: The Max-Prop feathering propeller had excellent stopping power, but needed rebuilding three times in 18 years. The Flexofold was sized to match the new smaller 75-horsepower engine.

The advantages of the Max-Prop are very little drag when sailing as the prop instantly feathers unless the engine is engaged, no freewheeling in neutral, adjustable pitch, and incredible stopping power in reverse. Max-Prop can literally bring a boat from 6 knots to a dead stop in a boat length

https://www.practical-sailor.com/issues/44_2/features/Folding-vs-Feathering-Props_12354-1.html?ET=practicalsailor:e36748:2438214a:&st=email&s=p_Grabbag012118 My installation required that the prop shaft be trimmed about 1/2 inch meaning that it could never again be used with a fixed prop: a critical concern to determine for your boat before undertaking...it is a marriage and divorce is always expensive. Consider this factor on any feathering/folding prop selection.

https://www.practical-sailor.com/issues/44_2/features/Folding-vs-Feathering-Props_12354-1.html?ET=practicalsailor:e36748:2438214a:&st=email&s=p_Grabbag012118# As the blades rotate 180 degrees in ¾ turn of the shaft a feathering propeller has the same efficiency in reverse as in forward. ... ... a feathering propeller is a low drag propeller. When motoring, the blades swing to the ahead or astern angled position, but under sail they ‘feather’, turning parallel to the boss. Feathering propellers typically produce nearly as much forward thrust as folding propellers and more forward thrust than those that are fixed. They are also generally more efficient than folding propellers when going astern.

https://www.sailmagazine.com/diy/why-low-drag-propellers Feathering props create about 5-10% of a fixed prop’s drag, sometimes less, while folding props have almost zero drag.

floating production, storage and offloading vessel (=FPSO) (n) (nav arch)
Floating Production Storage and Offloading vessels, or FPSOs, are offshore production facilities that house both processing equipment and storage for produced hydrocarbons

https://www.rigzone.com/training/insight.asp?insight_id=299 plutajući objekt za proizvodnju, skladištenje i iskrcaj naftnih proizvoda, FPSO-brod: The basic design of most FPSOs encompasses a ship-shaped vessel, with processing equipment, or topsides, aboard the vessel’s deck and hydrocarbon storage below in the double hull.
After processing, an FPSO stores oil or gas before offloading periodically to shuttle tankers or transmitting processed petroleum via pipelines.

Floating Production Storage and Offloading (ship) (FSRO) is a vital component required while transiting and transferring Liquefied Natural Gas (LNG) through the oceanic channels. Therefore, FSRU can be termed as a special type of ship used for LNG transfer.

Floating Storage Regasification Unit (FSRU) is a type of floating terminal that can act as a LNG storage vessel and a regasification plant. FSRUs can be classified either as ships or offshore installations depending upon the design they incorporate. They (FSRUs) can appear as: (a) newly built floating units for regasification of LNG; (b) constructed as a separate unit aboard the LNG carrier itself, or (c) an old gas carrier can be converted into an independent unit and placed in a particular destination as an offshore installation (cf. https://www.marineinsight.com/types-of-ships/what-is-floating-storage-regasification-unit-fsru/).

The agreed charge for the carriage of cargo expressed per ton (or as a lump sum) is called a freight rate. It is the amount charged by container shipping companies for transporting cargo, normally as a rate per 20-foot or 40-foot container, or as a rate per unit (as per hundred pounds or per ton) by a carrier for the transportation of cargo generally published in a freight tariff.

Factors that can either increase demand for tankers or lead to excess supply will clash for the balance of 2016, leading to great fluctuations in oil tanker freight rates. Container freight rates fell in August after two months of gains and came close to their 20-month low. Freight rates will subsequently fall due to increased vessel supply as newly built and repaired ships are delivered to owners by shipyards. Oil tanker rates soar as supplies surge from Iraq, Saudi Arabia etc. Rates for the world’s biggest oil tankers surged to the highest since January as shipments accelerated from Saudi Arabia and Iraq, the two biggest suppliers in the Persian Gulf. Freight rates for very large crude carriers (VLCCs) are set to rise further next week, fuelled by a raft of cargoes from West Africa and the Middle East. Rates for VLCCs from West Africa to China soared to W50 on Thursday against W43 on the same day last week. The test determines the temperature at which the fuel will give off sufficient vapours to ignite when a flame is applied. Flames give off ultraviolet and infra-red radiation and detectors are capable to respond to either. The fire consumed the oxygen in the space and gave off toxic fumes.

The forecast did not give rise to concern. Prognoza nije izazivala zabrinutost. The electrically driven compensator will not give rise to distorting stresses in the hull, but it is more expensive than the engine-mounted compensators. The actions of other vessels gave rise to concern. The total stress level is high and varies with time, giving rise to the risk of fatigue. I believe watch officers ought to call the master before using the VHF for close quarters or collision avoidance as it can give rise to doubts and misunderstandings and can be a distraction.

Failure of the tanker to give way caused me to reduce speed as action to avoid collision. Within a few minutes he realised his assessment was wrong so he altered course to starboard attempting to give way and pass clear. As the area was clear of shipping it was expected that the other vessel would give way at about 2nm range in accordance with rules 15 and 16.

Another vessel in the SW Lane had to alter course to give way to the NE bound vessel, still maintaining its course in the SW Lane. I believe that HSC do generally give way to other vessels.

The vessel that must yield to another vessel according to the navigation rules. Also known as the burdened vessel. The cargo vessel was undoubtedly the give way giving-way ship and recognised this fact from a relatively early stage. Since own vessel was now the give way vessel, appropriate action was taken by altering course to starboard. Concerned that the give way vessel was still standing on, the OOW started to try and attract the other vessel’s attention using the Aldis lamp.

The wind was Force 2, the sea glassy calm, visibility was excellent and the swell was negligible.

When the piston rings are renewed the glaze on the liner bore should be broken by honing to provide the surface suitable for rapid running-in.

Practically all fishing vessels are now equipped in compliance with GMDSS requirements. In compliance with the Global Maritime Distress Safety System.
GLONASS (Global Navigation Satellite System) a space-based satellite navigation system operated by the Russian Aerospace Defence Forces.

GMDSS (Global Maritime Distress Safety System) is a digital electronic communications system which sends distress and safety information. It applies to vessels over 300 Gross Registered Tons and all international passenger vessels. GMDSS divides the world into four types of communications coverage (sea areas A1 to A4), which determine the appropriate terrestrial or satellite means of communication to use.

- GMDSS installation is located on the rear bulkhead of the bridge and the OOW is unable to maintain his navigation watch for increased safety. For increased safety the IMO is stressing on duplication of all essential gadgets including the GMDSS installation.
- GMDSS equipment is fitted that most A3 ships are fitted with Inmarsat-C (to give them SafetyNET coverage, and Distress Alerting ship-to-shore. The installation of the GMDSS equipment plus telex, fax and telephone and other alarm sounds on the bridge are an additional headache to the officer on duty.

- GMDSS alarm was not used because we were not in danger. Does anybody use their GMDSS DSC alert system which means he is getting insufficient rest.

- GMDSS call was not used because we were not in danger. Does anybody use their GMDSS DSC alert system correctly to get the right response?

- GMDSS message has been with us for some time now and I feel that it has become a nuisance that we have learned to live with.

The guard zone is set up using the EBL and VRM. Guard zones can be set up for many reasons, but a common one would be to give early warning of the approach of another vessel. I observed an echo on my radar screen that was passing through the preset Guard Zone of 1.5 nautical miles.

bubanj za uže (na sidrenom vitlu): An offshore supply vessel was mobilising for a project which required the use of an 84mm chain wheel (gypsy) instead of the 105mm unit already installed. The anchor party, comprising the third officer, bosun and one AB, could not fully house the anchor in the hawsepipe, as a twist in the cable between the gypsy and the guide roller prevented the anchor from orientating properly. The plan was to temporarily take the weight of the anchor on its lashing (wire sling) by 'walking back' the windlass in gear, and then rotate the slack chain between gypsy wheel and the guide roller to remove the twist;
