NOTES ON THE USE OF THE DICTIONARY:

Headword (main entry, Lemma) = English language entries on the left-hand side of the dictionary.

Headwords can be:
- (a) single words (cable, berthing) or
- (b) multi-word units (berthing accommodation, berthing alongside)

Homonym = words of the same form but different, or partly different, meaning (cable1, cable2, cable3, cable4 etc.)

Pronunciation = IPA (International Phonetic Association) transcriptions are applied

= (other forms of the word) = derivatives, spelling variations, abbreviations, related words

Part of speech = n (noun), v (verb), adj (adjective), adv (adverb), prep (preposition), prep. phrase, etc.

Sub-entries = multi-word expressions (all red-coloured):
- (a) a word or group of words (adjective or noun) + headword (marked by the sign ~), e.g. supply ~ = supply cable; electrical ~ = electrical cable; preparation for ~ = preparation for manoeuvre
- (b) headword (marked by the sign ~) + a word or group of words, e.g. ~ armour; ~ gland; ~

Usage labels: = Labels mark the register (i.e. maritime-related subject field) where the headwords (terms) or sub-entries are used; In this dictionary these include the following:

The text contains a detailed explanation of various nautical terms and their meanings. Here are some key terms and their definitions:

- 100 A1: Character used in Lloyd’s Register denoting that a sea-going vessel is constructed of steel and is classed with Lloyd’s Register. This is a specific notation indicating the vessel's classification standards.

- Klasa broda 100 A1: Class of a bulk carrier according to Lloyd’s Register of Shipping. It signifies that the vessel is constructed of steel and is classed with Lloyd’s Register.

- AA (Always afloat): A term in Charter-Party which stipulates that the charterer must not order the ship to a port or berth where she would touch the bottom or perhaps be unavailable at any time due to tidal variations. This ensures that the ship remains accessible.

- AAR (Against all risks): An insurance policy that provides coverage against all types of loss or damage rather than specific ones. This is a comprehensive insurance policy.

- A.B. (Able-Bodied Seaman): A term that refers to a seafarer who is at least 18 years old, able-bodied, and responsible for the operation of the vessel.

- aback: A term in sailing terms which means to sail with the wind on the side, pressing the sail back, slowing the ship, giving it sternway, or driving it to leeward. It is useful in close quarters sailing to maintain control of the vessel.

The document also includes historical and practical examples of these terms in use, such as the inspection of automatic draft gauges by the chief mate and the ABs (Able-Bodied Seamen) to ensure the vessel’s safe operation. The text provides a comprehensive guide to understanding and applying these nautical terms in various contexts.

airlift (n) (safety) podizanje s mora (broda) u helikopter: After initial rescue efforts were impeded by bad weather that stopped other ships getting close, It.: and Greek helicopter crews began the airlift on Sunday afternoon.
It was found that the small basis bore ventilation air pipes to the engine room were completely blocked by rust flakes.

In this case, crushed nut shells were injected into the turbocharger under 7 bar air pressure.

No1 compressor was isolated but the engineers soon noticed that the air pressure in the main air receiver was dropping.

Accordingly, the air start valves were opened and one of the engineers operated the turning gear control lever with the intention of disengaging the turning gear from The main engine indicator cocks were left open, the turning gear disengaged, the air receiver valves and main air start valve were shut, and the lubricating and cooling water pumps were left running.

There is no doubt that their swift actions in stopping the engines and isolating the fuel and air supplies to the engine room contributed significantly to extinguishing the fire. The engineer then opened the air supply valve to pressurise the reservoir.

A metal air-tight tank built into a boat to insure flotation even when the boat is swamped.

Following an unsuccessful attempt to fight the fire with a portable dry powder extinguisher, the engines were shut down and the air vents closed.
AIS (Automatic Identification System) - Used to help identify vessels to assist in target tracking (based on Global Navigation Satellite System), and to improve quality of information available to OOW. AIS continually transmits the ship's own data to other vessels and VTS stations. It also continuously receives data from other vessels and VTS stations and, when linked to radar or ECDIS, can also display this data. AIS transmits: static data (MMSI number, call sign and name, IMO number, length and breadth, type of ship, location of position fixing antenna), dynamic data (ship's position, position time in UTC, course over ground, speed over ground, heading, navigational status, rate of turn), and voyage data (ship's draught, hazardous cargo, destination and ETA, route plan - waypoints) (Seamanship Notes 2004).

AIS is a navigation and anti-collision tool enabling the exchange of ship-to-ship information.

AIS should be operational at all times AIS system is used to exchange vessel and navigation data including vessel name and call sign, length and beam, position with accuracy indication and integrity status, course, speed, heading and ROT and other specific information, all in real time. Data is shared with other nearby ships as well as coastal VTS (Vessel Traffic Service) stations. Vessels were usually tracked using AIS as manual acquisition and tracking was generally less reliable. All available equipment should be used by the OOW, whether be it ARPA, AIS or anti-collision alarms (COLREG rule 7 -Risk of collision). The vessel's AIS was switched off. The primary means of navigation was paper charts. The IMO made the carriage of AIS mandatory under SOLAS V for all vessels of 300 GT or more engaged on international voyages from 31 December 2004. AIS is publicly broadcast via a VHF transponder device with the primary function of improving ship-to-ship and controlled water space 'situational awareness', such as major ports and traffic pinch-points like the Dover and Singapore Straits. AIS transmits dynamic position and movement data, voyage related facts and static information such as vessel details designed to enhance water space management within the VHF horizon.

Bachelor of Science (Honours) Degree (n) (UK) (mar law) SEE honours degree BSc (Hons) indicates one has completed an Honors Degree Bachelor of Science undergraduate program. An ordinary Bachelor of Science accepts grades on a pass/no pass basis. In contrast, an honors designation requires that students demonstrate superior academic performance (https://www.reference.com/education/bsc-hons-stand-2db47f34f4f4ff3bf3cf) akademski stupanj prvostupnika s posebnim uspjehom (iznad propisanih standarda) Bachelor of Science (Honours) Degree in Marine Operations Management akademski stupanj prvostupnika nautilićkih znanosti s posebnim uspjehom (iznad propisanih standarda): This course draws upon the exciting and challenging area of shipping management. It is tailor-made for those seafarers who decide to embrace a new career path, enhancing the qualifications which they have gained, with the quality of excellence of an Honours degree but without the three years of academic study that is necessary for such a degree on a traditional university course.

Bachelor of Science (Honours) Degree in Marine Engineering and Management offers an academic top-up programme leading to a Bachelor of Engineering (Honours) Degree in Marine Engineering and Management.

beacon 3 (n) (safety) = distress beacon In the system of SAR, beacons use radio signals to indicate distress. Each unit has a built-in transmitter and batteries. Two main beacon types interest the Coast Guard: an Emergency Locator Transmitter (ELT), designed for aircraft and an Emergency Position Indicating Radio Beacon (EPIRB), designed for vessels. Both transmit a radio signal when activated. Unlike most ELTs, EPIRBs transmit a coded message that indicates the identity of the beacon in use. A third type of beacon, which operates through the satellites for use on land, is the Personal Locator Beacon (PLB) class. (http://www.ccg-gcc.gc.ca/eng/CCG/SAR_Maritime_Sar#Rescue_Alerting)

beacon (safety) osobni radio lokator (u traganju i spašavanju): The EPIRB was activated along with the personal locator beacon.

When the machinery space was entered, the engine’s No 6 cylinder large end bearing assembly was found to have passed through the port crankcase door, and to have come to rest immediately outside the engine.

This blanked the oil supply to the small end bearing and cooling oil to the underside of the piston, resulting in overheating and seizure of the piston in the cylinder liner.

However, a spate of turbo-charger bearing failures had been linked to overheating.

The aim of the blockchain project (in South Korea) is to share data securely between all its participants and reduce the massive amount of administrative paperwork. (Kang, 2017; Zeng, 2017). The intent of introducing blockchains in shipping is "to digitize the end-to-end supply chain processes and help "manage and track the paper trail of tens of millions of shipping containers across the world" (IBM 2017). The blockchain project (in South Korea) is making its presence felt quite rapidly in our industry.

A bitcoin currency platform used in shipping was created to manage and track the paper trail of tens of millions of shipping containers across the world. (https://www.safety4sea.com) A blockchain is a distributed database, which is shared among and agreed upon a peer-to-peer network. It consists of a linked sequence of blocks, holding timestamped transactions that are secured by cryptography and verified by the network community. Once an element is appended to the blockchain, it cannot be altered, turning a blockchain into an immutable record of past activity. (Seebacher & Schüritz 2017). both-to-blame clause (n) (mar law) A clause inserted into some U.S. bills of lading, which required that in the event of a ship collision for which both vessels were at fault, cargo indemnify its carrying vessel for any amount which that vessel had had to pay to the colliding vessel in respect of any claim made by cargo against the colliding vessel.

both to blame collision clause (n) (mar law) Clause in a Bill of Lading or charter party which stipulates that, in the event of a collision between two ships where both are at fault, the owners of the cargo must indemnify the carrying ship against any amount paid by the carrying ship to the non-carrying ship for damage to that cargo. This clause arises because, under American law, a cargo owner is not able to make any recovery from the carrier for damage resulting from negligent navigation but may instead sue the non-carrying ship which in turn seeks recovery from the carrying ship in proportion of his fault. This would render a carrier indirectly liable for a loss for which he is not directly liable to the cargo owner. The clause has, however, been held to be invalid in the American courts when incorporated with a common carrier.

One of the two crew started the hold ventilation fan, and brought a breathing apparatus (BA) set and an emergency escape breathing device (EEBD) to the f’ocsle. A fire party in breathing apparatus entered the engine room after a further 40 minutes. Compressed air breathing apparatus was used to displace the air and the breathing apparatus was presurized to provide a safe breathing environment. A fire party in breathing apparatus entered the engine room after a further 40 minutes. Compressed air breathing apparatus was used to displace the air and the breathing apparatus was presurized to provide a safe breathing environment. The Chief Officer donned a breathing apparatus and dived from a lifeboat to detect the source of leakage. Rebreather was used to refill the breathing apparatus cylinder. A cargo ship suffered burns to his hands and face when he wrongly used a self-contained breathing apparatus (SCBA) air compressor to refill an oxygen breathing apparatus (OBA) cylinder, causing it to explode. The breathing apparatus was refilled and the Chief Officer donned a breathing apparatus. The hulls of both vessels were breached below the waterline, with the tanker sustaining extensive damages. Seafarers were evacuated to shore using a breeches buoy in an operation that lasted several hours.

The bridge manual contains bridge cards for watchkeeping, bridge management, passage planning, navigation with ECDIS, preparations for arrival and pilot
The OOW was sitting in the port bridge chair where he had a direct view of both radar and ECDIS displays.

- The layout of the central bridge console prevented the chief officer from utilising the ECDIS display to support the Master during pilotage. After the vessel left her berth, her master, who was positioned at the aft-looking bridge console, handed control to the chief officer. A radar was allocated to the pilot for his own use on the port side of the main bridge console.

- The OOW focused on finding a visual reference and did not utilise the bridge navigational equipment to effectively monitor the vessel’s progress.

- The tow line became taut and the mate, who was at the bridge controls, stopped the winch as he could no longer pay out the line.

- The ship’s bridge equipment included X and S band radar displays that were set on the 6nm range scale. All other bridge equipment, including speed logs, depth indicators, AIS and GPS receivers was operational and functioning as designed.

- The Boatswain wanted to send a seaman on top of the containers to place bridge-fittings.

- Although manning levels may at times be stretched, the full implications of lone bridge manning should always be considered carefully.

BridgeLink is a unifying platform for linking critical navigation equipment, such as radar, ECDIS, conning and propulsion control with vessel automation and power management and sensors used for monitoring condition and performance of engineroom systems.

Poor bridge management leads to LPG hitting wharf.
The bridge manual contains detailed instructions for watchkeeping, bridge management, passage planning and pilot management. The bridge manual formed part of the IMS and detailed the company’s bridge procedures, checklists and navigational safety guidelines.

The fundamental requirements of planning and executing a safe navigational passage must be clearly and fully understood and implemented by all bridge officers. After lunch, the bridge OOW gave the duty engineers permission to test the main engine.

The bridge personnel were not functioning as a team on either vessel. Effective bridge resource and team management should eliminate the risk that an error on the part of one person could result in a dangerous situation. The principles of bridge resource management (BRM), such as consultation and cross-checking, are equally applicable to engine room operations, particularly during an emergency. Contributing to the circumstances that resulted in the collision was the inadequate bridge resource management between the master and the pilot. Poor bridge resource management by the pilot, captain, and bridge team, along with complacency resulted in more than $8 million in damage to the wharf and ship. It is imperative that pilots and ships’ bridge teams work together and implement the best practices of Bridge Resource Management to ensure the safety of both ships and ports.

Then he used the search light on top of the bridge roof and operated by a handle just above the manœuvreing desk.
All the officers involved will attend a Bridge Team/Pilot Relationship course on a full mission ship bridge simulator. The bridge team included the OOW, an AB and a deck cadet. All members of a bridge team should be briefed on the plan, encouraged to actively contribute to the vessel’s navigation. The bridge team consisted of the Master, the pilot, the third officer as the officer of the watch (OOW), and a helmsman. The bridge teams of both vessels were in VHF contact, but each team developed different understandings of how the meeting would be conducted. The bridge team comprised the master and the river pilot, who was conducting the navigation and providing pilotage advice to the master. www.gov.uk/maib

The goals of CAD/CAM software in shipbuilding: supporting innovative designs and facilitating production; software for the complete definition of a virtual 3D model of the ship and for extracting the production/manufacturing information, including the hull forms generation, GA, NAC, hull structure, machinery and outfitting, electrical design and production outputs.

CAD CAM (n) (nav arch) The goals of CAD/CAM software in shipbuilding: supporting innovative designs and facilitating production; software for the complete definition of a virtual 3D model of the ship and for extracting the production/manufacturing information, including the hull forms generation, GA, NAC, hull structure, machinery and outfitting, electrical design and production outputs.

Softver: In ship building industry, CNC and CAM are mostly applied to NC cutting and manufacturing of propeller and prototype ship model. Nowadays, 3D CAD/CAM software packages are the main tools in any shipyard or design office in the marine industry. It is used for the complete definition of a virtual 3D model of the ship and for extracting the production/manufacturing information, including the hull forms generation, GA, NAC, hull structure, machinery and outfitting, electrical design and production outputs.

CAD/CAM/CAE programs are invaluable assets to the designer, builder and operator of vessels of all sizes and dimensions. Not only do advanced programs allow for the creation of an efficient and cost effective ship structure and outfitting, they provide for enhanced manufacturing practices and techniques, and increasingly help devise a life-cycle maintenance and care plan which can tack profitable years onto a vessel’s life.

The second tug was quickly alongside the casualty and passed across three charged fire hoses. Type of casualty: Capsizing/Listing EMSA No. ... 3-2008 A recent marine casualty involving a large fishing vessel resulted in multiple fatalities and loss of the vessel.

marine casualty 'izvanredni događaj na moru koji je prouzročio štetne posljedice kojima su neposredno ugroženi ljudski životi, imovina i okoliš'; In accordance with the RESOLUTION A.849(20) adopted on 27 November 1997 - CODE FOR THE INVESTIGATION OF MARINE CASUALTIES AND INCIDENTS a marine casualty is an event that has resulted in any of the following: 1. the death of, or serious injury to, a person that is caused by, or in connection with, the operations of a ship; or 2. the loss of a person from a ship that is caused by, or in connection with, the operations of a ship; or 3. the loss, presumed loss or abandonment of a ship; or 4. material damage to a ship; or 5. the stranding or disabling of a ship, or the involvement of a ship in a collision; or 6. material damage being caused by, or in connection with, the operation of a ship; or 7. damage to the environment brought about by the damage of a ship or ships being caused by, or in connection with, the operations of a ship or ships.

pomorska nesreća serious casualty a casualty which does not qualify as a very serious casualty and which involves: 1 a fire, explosion, grounding, contact, heavy weather damage, ice damage, hull cracking or suspected hull defect, etc., resulting in; 2 structural damage rendering the ship unseaworthy, such as penetration of the hull underwater, immobilization of main engines, extensive accommodation damage etc.; or 3 pollution (regardless of quantity); and/or 4 a breakdown necessitating towage or shore assistance. ozbiljna nesreća (požar, eksplozija, nasuankanje, oštećenje broda) usljed kojega brod prestane biti sposoban za plovidbu, very serious casualty a casualty to a ship which involves the total loss of the ship, loss of life or severe pollution catenary /ˈkætənəri/ (navig, seamanship) matematička krivulja kojom se opisuje oblik sidrenoga lanca dok je brod usidren (http://kb.roca.com/kb/Scope_vs_catenary); a mathematical term which describes the shape of a flexible line (like chain) hung between two points (like the bow of your boat and the seabed); The sag in a line strung between two points https://www.ypiyachts.com/; the curve of the ground tackle lančanica, krivulja ovješenog lanca: a catenary is seen in the real world when a flexible line hangs between two points. It is the effect of gravity, a uniformly directional force, acting along its length. A typical example is the chain and rope connecting your anchor to your boat (http://www.petersmith.net.nz/boat-anchors/catenary.php). In moderate winds of 20 knots, catenary is obvious and a section of the chain lies on the seabed. A more serious scenario of 50 knots wind – the catenary has all but disappeared, and the angle of pull on the anchor is dictated primarily by the scope, not the weight of the chain. CAT fines (=catalytic fines) (n) (marine eng) using marine fuel with aluminium and silicon Cat fines (catalytic fines) are hard aluminium and silicon oxide particles that are normally present in heavy fuel oil. Cat fines in fuel entering the engine will cause wear: The higher the amount of cat fines, the higher the wear will be. The recommended maximum acceptable level of cat fines entering the engine should always be as low as possible and maximum 15 ppm Al+Si for short periods. Cat fines are hydrophilic and emulsify readily on contact with water. Removal efficiency falls as water content increases. Maintain settling tank temperature above 85°C to aid settling and water content removal. Wear from cat fines in two-stroke engines is found in the combustion chamber on cylinder liner, piston rings and piston ring grooves, resulting in high wear rates and possible scuffing.

celestial navigation (n) (navig) Celestial navigation systems are based on observation of the positions of the Sun, Moon, Planets and navigational stars. Such systems are in use as well for terrestrial navigating as for interstellar navigating. By knowing which point on the rotating earth a celestial object is above and measuring its height above the observer's horizon, the navigator can determine his distance from that subpoint. A nautical almanac and a marine chronometer are used to compute the subpoint on earth a celestial body is over, and a sextant is used to measure the body's angular height above the horizon. That height can then be used to compute distance from the subpoint to create a circular line of position. A navigator shoots a number of stars in succession to give a series of overlapping lines of position. Where they intersect is the celestial fix. The moon and sun may also be used. The sun can also be used by itself to shoot a succession of lines of position (best done around local noon) to determine a position (Bowditch 2002) nebeska navigacija, astronomska navigacija practise celestial navigation provoditi astronomsku navigaciju primijeniti astronomsku navigaciju

A certificate of competency is a document that certifies an individual's qualification to perform certain tasks or duties at sea. These certificates are typically issued by national authorities or international organizations and are based on specific training and experience requirements. The certificates specify the areas of competence and the conditions under which the holder is authorized to perform these tasks.

In the context of the International Maritime Organization (IMO) and its Convention on Standards of Training, Certification, and Watchkeeping for Seafarers (STCW), there are various categories of certificates that cover different aspects of seafarer competency. The specific details of these certificates, such as the requirements for each category and the conditions under which they are valid, are outlined in the STCW Convention and its associated guidelines.

For example, a CoC for officers in charge of a navigational watch would typically include the requirements for navigating ships, understanding weather conditions, and coordinating with other crew members. Similarly, a CoC for a master would involve a broader range of responsibilities, including overall management of the ship, crew, and cargo.

The holder of a certificate of competency must maintain their qualifications through ongoing training and assessment to ensure they remain competent and up-to-date with the latest standards and regulations. This is crucial for maintaining safety and operational efficiency in the maritime industry.

Further details on the specific requirements and conditions for each type of certificate can be found in the STCW Convention and its guidelines, which are regularly updated and revised to reflect changes in maritime law, technology, and safety standards.

Alerts are then forwarded to the associated mission control centre (MCC) for processing and determination of position. (CAMSAR II – Mission Coordination) The 406 MHz distress beacons are coded, and when properly registered, identify the aircraft or vessel and give contact information, which the JRCC/MRSC coordinator uses in resolving the incident. cargo situacija kada brod zaostaje u svojem plovidbenom redu (schedule) i operativa treba "dovesti brod na schedule". Te mjere dovođenja broda u vremenski okvir plovidbenog reda su "recovery measures", a među njima je često CUT&RUN. To znači da se donosi odluka da brod u određenom trenutku prekida trguvачke operacije u luci, te određeni teret ostaje na obali neukrcan. To dovodi do preusmjeravanja bukiranog tereta na drugi raspoloživi brod (=cargo rollover). U tim slučajevima teret ostaje neukrcan i mora se pre-bukirati se na sljedeći brod. (personal information: Jakov Karmelić 2021); terminate discharge/loading operations before all the boxes have been discharged or loaded in order to maintain schedule.. This delay could be due to slow port operations, delays due to weather etc..

diesel engine (n) (marine eng) dizelski stroj, dizelski stroj, dizel motor: The first merchant ocean-going liner driven by a diesel engine was the Selandia in 1912. A diesel engine may be designed to work on the two-stroke or four-stroke cycle. The four-cycle Diesel engine is easier to reverse than the two-cycle Diesel engines as there are fewer moving parts to be changed in direction of rotation. The most powerful diesel engines in the world are two stroke crosshead engines. Dual-fuel or spark-ignited engines are already capable of operating with fuels such as methane and natural gas in gaseous form from fossil, biomass or synthetic sources, while diesel engines can run on liquid biofuels, biodiesel or e-diesel. https://www.marineinsight.com/ marine diesel engine brodski dizelski stroj, brodski dizel stroj, brodski dizel motor, brodski stroj: An important parameter for a marine diesel engine is the rating figure, usually stated as brake horsepower (bhp) or kilowatts per cylinder at a given revolutions per minute, inboard diesel engine nutarnji dizel motor, outboard diesel engine izvanbrodski dizel motor, 2 stroke diesel engine dvotaktni dizelski stroj: A slow-speed two-stroke diesel is usually arranged to operate continuously on heavy fuel and have available a diesel oil sup. The 2 stroke diesel crosshead engine works on exactly the same principle and cycle as the 2 stroke diesel trunk piston engine. Unlike the 4 stroke engine, a two stroke diesel engine does not use the piston to push out the exhaust gas, instead, air enters the cylinder around bottom dead centre and sweeps or the exhaust gas from the cylinder, 4 stroke diesel engine četverotaktni dizelski stroj: In a four stroke trunk piston engine of 1100 kw output, a hole was (burn) through a piston crown. medium speed diesel engine srednjohodni dizelski stroj: On a medium speed 4 stroke engine the oil is supplied to the main bearings through drillings in the engine frame to the crankshaft main bearings. high speed diesel engine brzohodni dizelski stroj: These ancillaries need electrical power which is usually provided by generators driven by medium- or high-speed diesel engines. low speed diesel engine sporohodni dizelski stroj: The 130 TBN lubricant was evaluated for 3 months in the Sulzer 6RLB90 low-speed engine of a container ship, which operated at 85–90 per cent maximum continuous rating. Medium- and low-speed gas-burning engine designs are offered by the MAN Diesel group, which cites successful experience with a Holeby 16V28/32-G (gas injection)
An average diesel fuel should comprise in percentages, carbon 86–87; hydrogen 11.0–13.5; sulphur 0.5–2; oxygen and nitrogen 0.5–1.0. To secure low NOx emissions, it is essential that the amount of injected diesel fuel is very small.

As the group went ashore, the diesel-fuelled heater located in the engine room was running and the radiators were noted to be on.

Two diesel generators were sharing the electrical load and the engine speed had been reduced to 60 rpm.

These small gas turbines are also in service in integrated systems linking steam turbo-alternators, shaft alternators and diesel gensets:

Low-, medium- and high-speed diesel engines are designed to burn marine diesel oil (ISO 8217, class DMB or BS 6843, class DMB) while low-speed. The engine was released for operation on marine diesel oil (ISO 8217, F-DMX to FDMB). The engine can be started up and manoeuvred on diesel oil or even a blend of diesel and heavy fuel oil.

The marine diesel propulsion market is dominated by direct-coupled low-speed two-stroke crosshead engines and geared high-medium-speed four-stroke trunk piston.

diffusor /ˈdɪfjuːzər/ (n) (marine eng) Turbocharger component which converts exhaust air velocity to increased air pressure at turbocharger outlet.

difuzor, razdjelnik: The air exits the impeller radially and passes through a diffuser, where some of the kinetic energy gets converted to pressure energy. A diffuser or volute is then used to convert most of the kinetic energy in the liquid into pressure.
using online technology and data digitalni otpremnik, digitalni špediter: Digital freight forwarders (i.e. companies like Twill, Freighthub, Flexport etc.) understand, develop, use and offer some of the most modern technologies known to the industry; are repurposing data from previous shipments and creating codes and algorithms to automate the most common activities; are able to use sophisticated methods to market their services using the full gamut of social, traditional and mainstream media for a quicker and more effective reach.

The crew of a twin beam scallop dredger had hauled the beams inboard and had secured them in position with the safety chains ready to empty the catch of scallops.

Generally speaking, dredging activity consists of periodic removal of material from the seabed in approach channels to port and harbour basins to maintain widths and depths in previously dredged areas to ensure the safe access for vessels.

Environmental groups argue that dredging will lead to wildlife habitat losses along the river.

The dredging project will take the channels to 55 feet deep, from their current depth of 50 feet, and widen the channels in select areas to allow for two-way traffic of ultra-large container vessels.

The vessel was yawing and rolling heavily and dredging her anchor at the anchorage due to strong winds and heavy sea, now coming from the southeast.

Dredging is a technique primarily targeting bottom dwelling molluscs such as scallops and clams. The weather conditions were good, and dredging took place until 0930 when there was insufficient water over the mussel beds to continue.

A dredging anchor is a buoy indicating the boundary of an area that is being dredged.

On a two stroke crosshead engine lubricating oil is supplied to the main bearings and camshaft and camshaft drive. The lost-motion clutch or servo motor uses a rotating vane which is attached to the camshaft but can move in relation to the camshaft drive from the crankshaft.

A podded propulsor (or pod) incorporates its electric drive motor in a hydro-dynamically optimized submerged housing.

First introduced in 1971, the 250 mm bore/300 mm stroke K-engine was designed mainly to be a genset drive but numerous propulsion plant applications have been logged in tugs, offshore supply ships and fishing vessels.

The fire pump was in operation to provide cooling water for the windlass hydraulic drive system.

The crew member was wiping clean the base of the scaler with the air motor running, when his glove became entangled in the moving drive belt, trapping his fingers.

In order to remove the dried old grease around the dog clutch and shaft, it was necessary for the seaman to extend his arm between the drum and the winch drive gear and clear it manually. There is an integral forged coupling flange for the flywheel, and the camshaft drive gear is split to facilitate replacement.

The port drive unit was found to have been moved out of alignment and the drive shaft had sheared, requiring dry dock repairs.

The relative movement between driving gear and camshaft is via a helically toothed sleeve integrated in the gearwheel, meshing with the corresponding counterpart on the camshaft.

drydock /=ˈdraɪdɒk/ (n) (nav arch) a type of dock consisting of a rectangular basin dug into the shore of a body of water and provided with a removable enclosure wall or gate on the side toward the water, used for major repairs and overhaul of vessels; a large dock made out from the shore, from which water can be pumped out in order to repair parts of the ship which are below the waterline; The dry dock is fitted with stationary keel blocks and movable bilge blocks, which usually are fitted on rack tracks, allowing them to be pulled under a vessel before the water is pumped out. (https://www.history.navy.mil/); a narrow basin or vessel that can be flooded to allow a load to be floated in, then drained to allow that load to come to rest on a dry platform. Dry docks are used for the construction, maintenance, and repair of ships, boats, and other watercraft. (https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Dry_dock#) suhi dok, Italian:bacino di carenaggio:
after unloading the ship entered drydock to effect permanent repairs During the short passage to drydock, all tanks were monitored and the ballast pump was continuously discharging the ingress into the fore peak tank. In the drydock, it was observed that apart from the large hole punched in the shell plating in way of the fore peak tank, there was no other damage. With company’s and class approval, the vessel continued on its short passage towards the discharge port, where, after unloading, she entered drydock to effect permanent repairs. The four main types of dry docking methods are as follows: floating dock, excavated dock, patent slip, ship lift After discharging cargo at Warrenpoint, the ship proceeded to Belfast dry dock, where a full inspection revealed extensive structural damage throughout the forward third of the hull with 26 penetrations in three compartments. ECDIS was the vessel’s primary means of navigation and the units were networked with the ship’s radars and Automatic Identification System (AIS). www.gov.uk/maib The transition to Electronic Chart Display and Information System (ECDIS) set for 2025 is already underway, but this does not mean the end of backup paper charts, and hopefully not the end of the navigational skills associated with traditional pilotage. https://www.practical-sailor.com/ The ship’s electronic chart display and information system (ECDIS) recorded the wind from the west at 15 knots. https://safety4sea.com/ ECDIS chart elektronička karta

ECDIS display /'ekdis/ (navig) ECDIS is a digital navigational chart system which can be used instead of paper charts, making the navigator’s workload easier with its automatic capabilities such as route planning, route monitoring, automatic ETA computation and electronic navigation chart updating. The International Maritime Organisation (IMO) made the carriage of ECDIS mandatory under Safety of Life at Sea (SOLAS) Chapter V (Safety of Navigation) for most large vessels of 3000 GT or more, on 1 July 2018. (https://www.marineelectronics.com/news/ecdis-maritime-accident-255821) prikaz elektroničke karte: The OOW looked at the ECDIS display and reported to the master that there was no cause for concern. A few minutes later, after having been contacted by VTS, the OOW zoomed in on the ECDIS display and realised that the vessel was aground. At 0240, the 3/O noticed that the ship’s speed shown on the ECDIS display had reduced to 7.4kts. Using such tools, ECDIS can help to establish the best time-saving route planning within pre-defined ‘safety corridors’ although .... a one-to-one check of the entire route from berth to berth must still be carried out.

echo /ˈekəʊ/ (n) (navig) the reflection of a radar signal from an object; the display of the reflected signal on the radar screen jeka, odraz (na radarskom ekranu): the target ship’s echo appeared on the radar at 3 miles multiple echoes višestruke jeke (od jednog objekta): Multiple echoes can occur when a strong, short-range echo is received from a target. echo strength jačina jeke, false echo lažna jeka, unwanted echo neželjena jeka, lažna jeka, sea echo smetnje od mora i valova, smetnje s mora, indirect echo indirektna jeka: Indirect echoes may be returned from either a passing ship or from a reflecting surface on your own ship, such as a stack. echo enhancement pojačavanje odraza /jeke, echo stretch izdužavanje odraza, pojačavanje odraza, echo expansion povećanje odraza, echo strength jačina odraza: The echo strength depends on the peak power of the transmitted pulse and the characteristics of the target. weak echo slab odraz: Remember! The weakest echoes, or those not seen at all may be the most dangerous.
displayed echo (on the radar screen) jeka prikazana na radarskom zaslonu: At 1219:43, with the VRM touching the displayed echo of the corner of the quay.
echosounder (=echo-sounder) (n) (navig) An instrument which transmits sound through the water and receives reflected signals from the bottom, and which, by measuring the elapsed time, computes and displays the depth. ultrazvučni dubinomjer check echosounder provjeriti zvučni dubinomjer, hydroacoustic echosounder 1 ultrazvučni dubinomjer; 2 eholot, switch on / off the echosounder uključiti / isključiti ultrazvučni dubinomjer: The vessel’s electronic navigation equipment were functioning properly but the echo sounder had been switched off shortly after leaving the port echo stretch kontrola na radaru za izduživanje manjih odraza / jeka, kontrola za pojačavanje slabijih odraza / jeka na radaru: The object of echo stretch or expansion is to make small targets look bigger.

echo trail (n) Echo trails are the afterglow of target echoes that represent their movements relative to own ship. They are useful for monitoring or zoom or shift is activated. trag cilja na radarskom ekranu, zadržana slika na radarskom zaslonu (nakon promjene područja): Echo trails are useful for assessing target movement and collision possibility eclipse /ˈklɪps/ (n) (navig) an interval of darkness between appearances of a light tama, pomrčina, eklipsa, period tame (plovidbene oznake) eco-friendly ship (=eco-ship) (n) (environ, marine eng, nav arch) ekološki prihvatljiv brod: the use of resources and energy to transport people and goods by ship and specifically concerns the reduction in such resources and energy in order to preserve the global environment from GHGs (greenhouse gas) and environmental pollutants generated by ships.
e-commerce (n) (safety) elektronička trgovina: The e-commerce players will decide the future of e-shipping world of the future.

economic speed (n) (shipping econ, navig) the speed of a vessel producing the best possible financial results for the owners, considering the following: 1. The prices of bunkers in the ports en route. 2. Fuel consumption of the vessel at various speeds. 3. Daily operating costs. 4. The net freight per ton of cargo. 5. Operating profit per day. http://www.tkmglobal.net/chartering_E.HTM elastic coupling: Elastic or flexible couplings allow slight misalignment and damp out or remove torque variations from the engine. The system comprises a compact unit with a step-up gear coupled directly to the generator, which is located above the elastic coupling.

elastic curve: The line in the right-hand diagrams connecting the maximum amplitudes reached simultaneously by each mass on the shaft system is called the ‘elastic curve’. The most significant masses in any mode of vibration are those with the greatest amplitude on the corresponding elastic curve.

electrical conductivity: The fire was caused either by a short circuit where the electrical cables were draped over the non-continuous bulkheads, or by an overheating electrical device belonging to one of the crew.
All the indications suggest that the fire was probably caused by an electrical fault on the bilge pump or high bilge level float switch circuit which were the only circuits that were live while the boat was at the mooring. Lack of attention, spontaneous combustion and electrical faults are the major causes of shipboard fire. Tender vessel caught fire due to a suspected electrical fault. (https://safety4sea.com/)

Correct layout of sea-water piping directly over steering pump electrical motors; The electrical motors and components were successfully cleaned out with solvents, dried out and made fully operational in the anchorage by ship's staff …

A lifeboat should never be hoisted by operating the winch motor from a remote electrical panel as this may by-pass the safety cut-outs, can result in loss of control due to communication difficulties and also pose an electrocution hazard.

The heavy seas washing over the deck rendered about 130 reefer containers without electrical power. The engine room responded promptly to a 'low insulation' alarm and upon seeing the sea-water leak in the steering gear room, immediately turned off the electrical power to the motors and informed the bridge. Electrical power was isolated throughout the ship with the exception of the emergency fire pump, which had been started to provide fire-fighting water. At the time, all electrical power was being supplied by the main engine driven shaft generator, and so with the main engine shutting down, all electrical power was also lost.

This caused an electrical short (cut), resulting in sparking and leading to high temperatures which caused damage to the cable insulation and fittings.

electronic aids (n) (navig) elektronička navigacijska pomagala: The bulk carrier’s officer of the watch did not effectively use the electronic aids available to maintain a proper lookout. In most collisions and groundings, electronic aids such as ARPA, CPA and TCPA alarms, waypoint alarms and depth alarms had not been used.

electronic bearing line (=EBL) (n) (navig) elektroničko smjeralo: We have monitored or plotted their radar targets using the cursor or ARPA facility; taken a series of compass bearings using the radar’s electronic bearing line; and/or taken a series of visual compass bearings using the azimuth ring. Facilities such as automatic plotting, electronic bearing lines, variable range markers and radar guard alarms, are normally provided to assist the OOW. He checked the vessel was on heading for the next alteration of course position, which was indicated by an electronic bearing line on the plotter.

electronic chart /ɪˌlektˈtronɪk/ (n) (navig) The electronic chart displays the vessel’s ‘real-time’ position, course and speed. It also carries out different complex functions to help improve the bridge crew’s ‘situational awareness’ and can meld together radar imagery, ship information, chart activity and AIS information all into one view.

(https://www.marineelectronics.com/news/ecdis-maritime-accident-255821) elektronička karta: The mate was alone on the bridge, navigating with the aid of an electronic chart system while seated on the wheelhouse chair. The intended route had been prepared using the ship’s electronic chart display and information system (ECDIS) and the OOW selected the scale on the ECDIS display that closely aligned with the 12 nm range scale set He was primarily using an electronic chart plotter with a GPS input, although he had two radars and a magnetic compass at his disposal.

Electronic Chart Display and Information System (ECDIS)

The OOW was monitoring the vessel’s position on the Electronic Chart Display (ECDIS) but was not plotting the position on the paper chart. We have developed the Electronic Navigational Charts for the Strait (and our port) which can be used together with the Electronic Chart Display and Information System (ECDIS) for real-time navigation without the use of paper charts. The ship was fitted with two independent Electronic Chart Display and Information System (ECDIS) units.

any method of position fixing using electronic means, including: radio navigation, radar navigation, satellite navigation.

elektronička navigacija: Although she was equipped with an Electronic Navigation System, which would have provided waypoint alarms, this was not in use because the crew were not sufficiently trained in its use.

electronic navigation aids

It is essential that all mariners are not only trained in the operation of electronic navigation aids, but understand the weaknesses and how these aids should be used as a decision support system rather than a decisionmaking system.

Electronic navigation equipment

Electronically equipped vessel’s electronic navigation equipment, which included the electronic chart display and information system (ECDIS), radar and the bridge navigational watch alarm system (BNWAS), were functioning correctly.

Electronic position fixing system određivanja pozicije: Navigators should use all available means to check the position of their vessel, but they must regularly verify the accuracy of positions displayed by electronic position fixing systems by reference to visual bearings and transits whenever available.

There is an increased reliance on NOAA electronic navigational charts (ENC) as the primary navigational product and the decreased use of traditional raster chart products.

Navigation was conducted by eye and by reference to an electronic navigational chart display (ENC).

Tragically, accidents in enclosed/confined spaces continue to be one of the most common causes of work-related fatalities on board ships today. The enclosed space where the seafarers were working was filled with the toxic gas.

Investigation findings: Closed Space Entry checks were not carried out. The tanks were washed, made gas free and, after enclosed space entry permits had been issued, the crew could enter for mopping.

engine load  (n) (marine eng) opterećenje motora, opterećenje stroja: Pulsating compressor noise, typically registered at around 30–50 per cent engine load, can be an issue due to today’s higher power outputs. The maximum efficiency measured at near-70 per cent engine load was around 69 per cent.

engine log  (n) (marine eng) dnevnik stroja: Any such loss of water must be recorded in the Engine Log Book and reported to the Chief Engineer. The chief engineer will examine the Engine Log when he has time.

detailed engine maintenance (n) (marine eng, sailing/boating/yachting) održavanje stroja, održavanje motora: A planned lifeboat drill was carried out on a coastal tanker while she was alongside in port for engine maintenance.

engine operation  (n) (marine eng) rad motora, rad stroja, upravljanje strojem: The resulting flexibility allows engine operation to be adjusted and optimized for fuel economy or low NOx emissions.

engine orders  (n) (marine eng, navig, safety, ship & line handling) = propulsion orders engine order telegraph (=chadburn)  (n) (marine eng) Electromechanical device that transmits orders to the engine room concerning desired direction of turn and general speed of the engines.

engine - no more manoeuvring!

engine output (n) (marine eng) _snaga motora:_ For _engine outputs_ of up to 8000 kW, only one turbocharger is used.

engine performance (n) (marine eng) _radne karakteristike, performanse stroja, radni učin stroja:_ The controllable injection timing (CIT) pumps also ensure that _engine performance_ is improved at the service load. The computer-controlled fuel injection system opens up possibilities to optimize _engine performance_, thanks to the freedom to choose key parameters: injection timing, injection pressure independent of engine speed, maximum injection quantity ...

engine power (n) (marine eng) _snaga motora, snaga stroja:_ Using full rudder and _engine power_, and transmitting appropriate signals on the air horn and VHF radio, the master just managed to turn the ship’s head into the wind and... An _engine power range_ from 20 000 kW to 28 000 kW per turbocharger is covered by the TPL-91B. _limit engine power_ _ograničiti snagu stroja (radi smanjivanja onečišćenja):_ ... to reduce greenhouse gas emissions from international shipping, technical measures to _limit engine power_ are among the ideas being considered to reduce carbon dioxide (CO2) from the existing fleet. Marineinsight https://www.marineinsight.com/, _engine power limitation_ _ograničavanje snage stroja_ engine problems (navig) _problemi sa strojem, poteškoće sa strojem:_ the ship was having some _engine problems_ and drifted midstream in a strong breeze brod je imao problema sa strojem i otpadao (plutao) u jakoj struji po sredini kanala i pri jakom vjetru On _boarding_, it was discovered that _the loaded vessel had engine problems_ and the Master had ordered spares which would arrive the following morning. After several days at sea _a serious engine problem occurred_ in number 7 cylinder.

engine readiness (n) (navig) spremnost stroja za pokretanje / manovru

state of engine readiness stanje spremnosti stroja za manovru, stupanj spremnosti stroja za manovru engine ready for immediate manoeuvre (n) (navig) stroj spreman za neposrednu manovru: Own ship quite rightly in my opinion had her engine ready for manoeuvre, but, does not appear to have had any intention to use it.

engine repairs (n) (marine eng) popravci na stroju: My technical department at the time was fully engaged in carrying out a major engine repair ... The sea conditions were slight and the vessel continued to drift in a southeasterly direction towards the Moroccan coast while engine repair work continued.

engine revolution (n) (marine eng) broj okretaja stroja: About 10 minutes afterwards, the main engine revolutions dropped from 1400 rpm to about 1100 rpm.

engine room (=engine-room; engineroom) (n) 1 (marine eng) = machinery room = machinery strojarnica, brodska strojarnica: The duty engineer entered the engine room at 06:50 to man the engine room. The chief engineer entered the engine room at the upper level, without BA, to guide the fire brigade. ; 2 (marine eng) strojarnica, Italian:sala macchine; locale motore engine room access (n) (nav arch, marine eng) prilaz strojarnici: At 1450, the engine room alarm panel repeater sounded in his cabin, so he immediately ran the short distance to the engine room access where the panel was situated.

engine room alarm (n) (marine eng, safety) alarm u strojarnici: As the lift was being prepared, the engine room alarm sounded.
The duty engineer opened the overboard valve to prevent the system from potentially overflowing into the engine room bilges.

Smoke was filtering through the engine room bulkhead and filling the wheelhouse, making it impossible to use the main VHF radio set.

On leaving his office, he saw flames rising from the stairwell around the engine room casing.

On leaving his office, he saw flames rising from the stairwell around the engine room casing.

An exhausted engine room crew once again opened, cleaned and boxed up the sea suctions (again filled with tiny fish) and the ship sailed from the terminal without any delay.

The master decided it would be necessary to operate the engine room CO\textsubscript{2} system to extinguish the fire.

The modern ship's propulsive unit, whether steam turbine or diesel engine, is run on oil, and the engine room department is composed of a team of engineer officers and ratings controlled by the chief engineer, who ranks after the master.

He shut the engine room door, informed the master of the fire and recommended that both main engines be shut down. It was initially assumed that the smoke was coming from the open engine room door. He shut the engine room door, informed the master of the fire and recommended that both main engines be shut down.

He shut the engine room door, informed the master of the fire and recommended that both main engines be shut down.

The engine room escape hatch was locked from the outside. Assuming this was an Engine Room escape hatch then it would be best secured from the inside, thus allowing those attempting to get out to achieve their escape.

Conscious of the need to isolate the oxygen supply, and potential fuel supply to the fire, he blocked the engine room ventilators, and shut down the engine room fans, main engine and generator.

The fuel is supplied to the injectors through drillings in the cylinder head, dispensing with high-pressure fuel lines and removing a potential cause of engine room fire. By now the crew, who had regularly exercised fighting an engine room fire, had blocked off the engine room vents, carried out boundary cooling on the deck using the hand-operated deckwash pump, and ... A containership suffered an engine room fire that left the ship adrift in the Caribbean Sea. https://gCaptain.com wheelhouse, the skipper closed the engine room hatch and instructed the crew to haul in the fishing gear and don their lifejackets. The engine room hatch was opened, and a hose was discharged into the engine room. The engine room hatch was opened, and a hose was discharged into the engine room.

Back in the

engine room log book (\(= \text{engine-room log}\)) (n) (marine eng) dnevnik stroja: Marine engineers are required to keep a log of all important machinery parameters such as pressure, temperatures, revolutions etc. in the engine room log book. A sea protest must by copies of the deck log book and of the engine-room log.

engine-room personnel (n) (marine eng) osoblje strojarnice, posada strojarnice, svi zaposleni u strojarnici: Engine-room personnel is fully ready to manoeuvre and bridge manned to relay engine orders.

engine-room rating (n) (marine eng) mornar stroja, član nižeg osoblja stroja: Two of the engine room staff remained in the engine room and two went to the vehicle deck. The second engineer distributed the day’s work to the engine room staff, verbally instructing the junior wiper to burn the garbage in the incinerator.

engine-room staff (n) (marine eng) osoblje strojarnice, personal stroja: Other equipment is to be tested and made ready for going to sea: the engine room telegraph, the speed log, the ship’s whistle, the steering gear and the winches, for instance.

engine room telegraph (n) (marine eng) veza između zapovjedničkog mosta i strojarnice za upravljanje strojem: A mechanical signaling device for communicating propulsion orders and acknowledgements between the bridge and the engine room.

engine room watch (n) (marine eng) straža u stroju: Tankers and bulk carriers employ dual-watch (poly-valent) officers (MarOff in the Netherlands) capable of keeping simultaneously the navigating and engine-room watch.

engine room workshop (n) (marine eng) strojarska radionica: Making the ramp door operable, a new set of wedges and small doublers was quickly fabricated in the engine room workshop and immobilisation and hot work permits were obtained at the next berth the following day.

engine skylight (n) (nav arch) vidnik strojarnice: I sent my watchman to close the engine room skylight and inform the crew of the rain.

engine spares (n) (sailing/boating/yachting, marine eng) pričuvni dijelovi motora: Spark plugs svjeće (benzinski motor), injector ubrizgač (dizelski motor), repair kit for fuel and water pumps with seals and impellers komplet za popravak pumpe goriva i pumpe rashladne vode s brtva i impelerima, set of hoses komplet gumenih cijevi, oil filters filtri ulja, fuel filters filtri goriva, set of gaskets, seals, and O-rings komplet brtava i brtvenih prstena, fuel gorivo, oil and grease ulje i mast za podmazivanje, fuel antibacterial additives antibakterijski aditivi za gorivo, spare ignition key rezervni ključ za paljenje motora.
Engine speed is controlled by a mechanical or electronic governor with hydraulic actuator. The 'heart' of the system was a microprocessor to which the actual engine speed and crankshaft position were transmitted as output signals. Full load can be accepted swiftly and smoothly at any engine speed, says EMD, and a 10 per cent overload capability can be exploited for two out of every 24 h of running. A reduction in engine speed compared with the BL550 limited the mean piston speed and yielded the increased output with virtually the same brake mean effective pressure. Although a late order to increase engine speed and helm was given, the vessel made contact with the buoy.

Engine stores (n) 1 (nav arch) spremište strojarnice; 2 (marine eng) zalihe i materijali za strojarnicu

Engine switch (n) (marine eng, sailing/boating/yachting) prekidač motora (za dovod i zatvaranje goriva na izvanbrodskom motoru)

Engine telegraph (marine eng) strojarski telegraf: At 2340, the master moved the engine telegraph from 'dead slow ahead' to 'slow ahead'; the tanker's speed was about 2kts and it remained on an easterly heading. A load programme led to a delay between the setting of the engine telegraph and the engine achieving the speed intended. The Master was quickly on the bridge and moved the engine telegraph to stop. If the engine telegraph printer for some reason does not function, movements shall be recorded manually, in this case in the Bridge and Engine Bell Books. The ship's engine telegraph was set to full ahead.

Engine trials (n) (marine eng) strojarske probne vožnje, strojarske pokusne vožnje; it would have been prudent to retain at least one escorting tug; 2 The outward pilot was apparently unaware that the vessel was intending to conduct engine trials off port limits (OPL) and was scheduled to return and anchor in the waiting area;

Engine utility man (n) (marine eng, mar law) a rating who provides assistance in various duties within the engine room, such as maintenance and minor repair tasks.

English law (n) (mar law) All law applicable in England. The major sources of English law are: 1) the common law of England; 2) the rules of equity; and 3) statutes and regulations of the United Kingdom applicable to England. Other sources of English law include English admiralty (i.e. maritime) law, the Law Merchant, the ecclesiastical law (of the Church of England) and custom pravo Ujedinjenog Kraljevstva, englesko pravo (izvori/vrela engleskog prava) exercise /ˈeksəˌsaɪz/ (v) vježbati, uvježbavati: The general health of officers has improved since they now have time to exercise and sleep more regularly; The retention of personnel is significantly higher as officers get better job satisfaction and are more willing to continue;

primjenjivati, prakticirati: As the vessel approached a precautionary area at 21 knots, Vessel Traffic Services (VTS) advised the vessel to exercise caution as three outbound vessels were ahead and intending to cross the TSS.

exhaust /ɪˈkɜːst/ (n) exhaust system ispušni sustav / sistem: A simple yet efficient exhaust layout designated Daihatsu single-pipe (DSP) exhaust system recovers gas energy effectively by allowing a good match to the turbocharger.

ispušni sustav, exhaust line ispušni cjevovod: It is desirable that the engine room air should be able to circulate inside the exhaust line, the air outlet being located as close as possible to the end of the exhaust line.

ispušni plin exhaust /ɪˈkɜːst/ (v) 1 ispuštati; 2 isprazniti exhaust analyzer (n) (marine eng) A test instrument used to measure the density of the exhaust smoke to determine the combustion efficiency. (http://www.marinedieseleurope.com/)

uređaj za analizu ispuha

exhaust and inlet system (n) (marine eng) sustav ispuha i dovoda zraka exhaust gas (n) (marine eng) ispušni plin: The passages for the inlet air and exhaust gas are incorporated, as are the cooling water passages and spaces. As well as these, most oiltankers install inert gas generators which may continuously produce an exhaust gas containing nitrogen and carbon dioxide for fire extinguishing.

exhaust gas emission emisija ispušnih plinova, ispuštanje ispušnih plinova: Because of the need to minimise exhaust gas emissions in this area, the ferry will operate primarily on LNG using two 9-cylinder Wärtsilä 20DF medium-speed dual-fuel engines.

Exhaust gas cleaning system (EGCS) (n) (marine eng) uređaj za pročišćavanje ispušnih plinova: Working with Euroshore, the association of European port reception facility providers, the EGCSA has been taking a science-based approach to the quality of scrubber washwater discharges. http://maritimeglobalnews.com/news/drive-scrubber-business-ckyyj8

The number of merchant ships with exhaust gas cleaning systems either installed or on order is approaching 1,000 ships worldwide, according to a survey by the Exhaust Gas Cleaning Systems Association. (2018) www.gcaptain.com exhaust manifold (n) (marine eng) a device which connects all the exhaust ports to one outlet

ispušni kolektor, razvodna cije
v ispuha: Drain cocks in exhaust and inlet manifolds are to remain open when machines are at rest and should be regularly tested and proved clear of blockages. The engine room fire was probably caused by the ignition of lubricating oil that sprayed from a fatigue-fractured fitting on one of the main engine’s pre-lubrication oil pumps onto the hot surface of the main engine’s exhaust manifold.

exhaust pipe (n) (marine eng) ispušna cijev: If the oil mist meets a hot spot it can be ignited; it is therefore important to keep the insulation around the exhaust pipes in good condition.

exhaust port (n) (marine eng) The opening through which exhaust gas passes from the cylinder to the manifold. (http://www.marinedieseleurope.com/) ispušni kanal, ispušni otvor: As the piston uncovers the exhaust ports on the power stroke, the exhaust gas starts to leave the cylinder. The opening and closing of the exhaust and air inlet ports are shown diagrammatically in the typical timing diagram.

exhaust silencer (n) (marine eng) prigušivač ispuha: Exhaust gas is conducted away from the turbocharger through the outlet casing via exhaust pipes to the exhaust silencer, then out into the open air through the stack or through the exhaust gas boiler.

exhaust steam (n) (marine eng) ispušna para exhaust valve (n) (marine eng) ispušni ventil: The two inlet and two exhaust valves seat on renewable inserts in the head, those for exhaust service being intensively cooled and sealed with Viton O-rings. A nodular cast iron cylinder head, hydraulically bolted to the crankcase at four points, incorporates two inlet and two exhaust valves. exhaust valve cage kućište ispušnog ventila: All water flowing across the cylinder head runs through the exhaust valve cages, significantly reducing the valve seat temperature. exhaust valve gear polužje ispušnog ventila, uređaj ispušnog ventila

exhibit /ɪɡˈzɪbɪt/ (v) 1 (navig) istaknuti (svjetlo, signal), izvjesiti, podići (zastavicu): Many of these vessels exhibit NUC lights while drifting. Rule 3(g)(vi) allows towing vessels to exhibit restricted ability to manoeuvre signals if circumstances permit. In many regions, local regulations require vessels carrying dangerous cargoes to exhibit a flashing red light. Exhibit "Not under Command" shapes or lights and use sounds signals as necessary https://safety4sea.com/; 2 (marine eng) pokazivati (karakteristike, obilježja): Smaller turbochargers exhibit better acceleration and vibration behaviour. Another synthetic lubricant, Castrol 778, is claimed to exhibit excellent anti-wear and rust-protection properties supported by superior oxidation stability.

exit /ˈeɡzɪt ; ˈeksɪt/ (navig) izlaziti exit the lock izači iz ustave: As soon as the tanker had exited the breakwater, the pilot’s launch transferred the pilot to the container ship. Čim je tanker izašao iz ulaza pri lukobranu, peljarska brodica prebacila je peljara na kontejnerski brod., emergency exit izlaz u slučaju opasnosti, nužni izlaz, exit the port izači iz luke, isploviti iz luke: They should develop such procedures for preparation of the vessel to exit port that would ensure that the vessel would not be able to exit port not fully ballasted and they would allow the captain to conduct ballasting operation ..., exit the tank izači iz tanka

exit (safety) izlaz: The ferry’s exit from the harbour was delayed. exit door izlazna vrata, exit plan: Engineers and ratings should be fully familiar with all exit doors of the engine room so that in an emergency, they can evacuate safely. exit channel: Before you enter a channel, a harbor, a port, or any confined or restricted space you must have an exit plan. https://gCaptain.com exonerate (v) (mar law) osloboditi od (obveze, odgovornosti): ... if a stevedore is injured on board, the vessel will be subjected to a very harsh inquiry/investigation and the authorities will likely exonerate the stevedore company of any blame and instead unfairly hold the ship liable for damages.

exoneration (n) (sailing/boating/yachting) iskupljenje (u regati) exoneration clause odredba / klaузula o povlastici, Klauзula o oslobađanju rizika / odgovornosti expand (v) širiti se, proširiti se: The gases expand forcing the piston down on the power stroke. The liner will expand more and is free to expand diametrically and lengthwise. The clear description of the accidents, the analysis and conclusions, enable seamen to expand their knowledge.

expanded square search (n) (navig, safety) traganje po proširenom četverokutu expansion (n) (marine eng) 1 rastezanje coefficient of expansion koeficijent rastezanja: The parts made of brass have a larger coefficient of expansion than the other parts of the valve.

expansion bellows (n) (marine eng) rastezljiva spojnica, valoviti kompenzator, valoviti prigušivač: The company investigation found that the rupture of the expansion bellows was caused by an overpressure in the pump system between the suction valve and the delivery valve.

expansion piece (n) (marine eng) rastezljiva spojnica, dilatacijski umetak: After slowing down, the leak was located in the expansion piece between the manifold and the blower in the top inlet, an extensive fracture of the bottom of one of corrugation.

expansion pressure (n) (marine eng) tlak ekspanzione: The scavenge air pressure, exhaust gas temperature and compression, combustion and expansion pressures are continuously monitored.

initial expansion pressure početni tlak ekspanzione expansion ratio (n) (marine eng) ekspanzioni omjer, stupanj širenja: The cycle efficiency is a function of the compression ratio (or more correctly the effective expansion ratio of the gas–air mixture after combustion).

expansion stroke (n) (marine eng) ekspanziji takt (u radu motora): Slow or late...
Experience fire

Combustion of fuel during the expansion stroke commonly referred to as afterburning may cause the engine to lose power considerably. The opening of the exhaust valve can be delayed about 15°, thereby lengthening the expansion stroke and improving the efficiency and reducing the fuel consumption.

Expansion tank (n) (nav arch) overflow tanks used to provide for expansion, overflow, and replenishment of oil in stowage or cargo tanks. Ekspanzijski tank, ekspanzioni tank: A header or expansion tank is placed at a sufficient height to allow the venting and water make-up in the system.

Expansion valve (n) (marine eng) ekspanzijski ventil, prigušni ventil: It was reported that while this system was operating, the piping near the expansion valve began constricting flow due to freezing hydrates.

Expel /ɪkˈspɛl/ (v) 1 istjerati, odstraniti; 2 istiskivati (tlačenjem): Intermittent rotation of exhaust valves is caused by the flow of burnt gases expelled from the cylinder. I.e. lower piston, so allowing air under pressure, which is delivered to the scavenge space by the turbocharger, to flow through the cylinder and expel the remaining burnt gases. As the piston moves up the cylinder, the hot gases (consisting mostly of nitrogen, carbon dioxide, water vapour and unused oxygen) are expelled from the cylinder.

Expenditure izdatak, trošak: As a result of the ship’s staff’s not observing the maker’s maintenance instructions and poor engineering practice, the company incurred an unplanned expenditure of nearly US$ 100,000.

Expense izdatak, trošak: ..., maximize the exploitation of the waste heat available in ships whose operating profiles and revenues can justify the added expense and complexity. He recommended that it should be renewed, but the owners were reluctant to take on the extra work and expense, and delay the vessel’s return to service. To avoid overtime expenses, few shipowners provide any assistance to the Duty Officer on the bridge at night. Expenses incurred (from) nastali traškovi, traškovi nastali uslijed: In addition to the extra expenses incurred, the vessel arrived at the discharging port three days late., out-of-pocket expenses džeparac, at the expense of na trošak / račun (nekoga): Significantly lower NOx emissions are reported, as well as reduced smoke and even carbon monoxide, but at the expense of a slightly higher fuel consumption. ..., the mate’s receipt was signed with the note, ‘Shipped on deck at shipper’s/receiver’s risk and expense., operational expenses operativni traškovi, pogonski traškovi Experience /ɪkˈspɪriəns/ (safety) doživjeti, proživjeti, iskušati, pretrpjjeti: Shortly after the contact with the foundation the ferry experienced a blackout. The ship left port in the early evening and, once clear of land, started to experience significantly stronger winds than were originally forecast, prompting the master to adjust the passage plan ... It was a last resort action as he had not previously experienced a similar situation and remained unaware of the fact that the port unit was misaligned. Experience fire (safety) pretrpjjeti požar, zapaliti se, experience rough / heavy weather (navig, meteorol) proći kroz / doživjeti / pretrpjjeti nevrjime: ... the instructor of one of the RIBs decided to close on a cardinal mark post, where the water was confused, so that the trainees could experience the influence of rougher water.

Experienced /ɪkˈspɪriənst/ iskusan, vijest: An experienced and responsible deck officer shall be in charge of the forward station when connecting/disconnecting chafe chain; The experienced crew member leaned back to get a better view of what had become entangled, and, in doing so, his left foot slipped on the footrope.

Experience fire (v) (safety) doživjeti požar, zapaliti se, doći do požara: The ship experienced a fire in a mechanical space as she was pulling into Falmouth, Jamaica. While underway a towing vessel with six crewmembers on board experienced an engine room fire.
expiration / ekspə riˈfən/ (n) (mar law) termination of a certain period istjek (ugovora): This Agreement shall terminate upon the expiration of a period of..................... months from the date Ovaj ugovor završava po istjeku vremenskoga razdoblja od … mjeseci od dana …

expire /ɪkˈspiər/ (v) (mar law) istjeći (ugovor, dozvola): the contract has expired rok ugovora je istekao ECDIS was not in use at the time of the accident as its chart licence expired.

expired certificate svjedodžba kojih je istekao rok važenja: Furthermore, expired certificates need to be renewed before the vessel can be re-commissioned.

expiry /ɪkˈspiəri/ (n) 1 (mar law) istjek (ugovora) expiry date datum istjeka roka (akreditiva, tarifa itd); 2 (safety, ship & line handling) istjek roka (trajanja): We recently replaced some of the sealed spare batteries and decided to test the old ones to see if they still worked. The expiry date on them is 2014.

expiry of laytime (n) (mar law) Moment when the time allowed in the Charter-Party for loading and / or discharging, as the case may be, has been used up. If loading or discharging, as the case may be, has been used up. If loading or discharging has not been completed, demurrage or damages for detention become payable. istjek vremena stojnica, istjek stojnica explosion (n) (safety) eksplozija: The explosion came from the ship’s boiler room, which triggered a fire onboard. the explosion occurred došlo je do eksplozije, nastala je eksplozija: Shortly afterwards, the first explosion occurred, spreading throughout the crankcase, blowing off the crankcase doors and igniting the whole of the lower engine-room atmosphere. Locked doors on a tanker mean horrific accidents should a fire or explosion occur. Approximately 25 minutes after the last tank was loaded, an explosion occurred and fire developed near the forward part of the cargo area. The ship was less than a year out of the shipyard when an explosion occurred in a cargo hold, explosion relief valve otpusni ventil za slučaj eksplozije: Explosion relief valves are fitted to the crankcase to relieve any build-up of excess pressure inside the engine; explosion-proof (adj) (safety) protueksplozijski, siguran od eksplozije: A cargo light was used to illuminate the work area, which was not intrinsically safe/exlosion proof.

explosives (n) (cargo) eksplozivi: Other 'illegal' goods or possessions can include weapons, explosives, pets, drugs in any form other than for medical purposes.

exponentiation /ˌekspə nɛnˈʃiən/ a mathematical operation, written as bn, involving two numbers, the base b and the exponent (or index or power) potenciranje: 3 raised to the power of 5 3 na petu 3 squared 3 na kvadrat 3 cubed 3 na kub / 3 na treću export (n) (shipping econ) izvoz: The MAIB has already pointed out that there is a strong case for weighing unaccompanied lorry trailers before they are loaded for export.

export declaration (n) (shipping econ, mar law) An export declaration is a document submitted at the time of export at the export (https://www.flexport.com/) izvozna deklaracija, prijava robe za izvoz export(ed) cargo (n) 1 (shipping econ) izvozni teret; 2 (ports) teret u ukrcaju export licence (n) (mar law, shipping econ) a government document which permits the licensee to engage in the export of designated goods to certain destinations izvozna dozvola, dozvola za izvoz export rate (n) (mar law, shipping econ) a (freight) rate published on traffic moving from an interior point to a port for transshipment to a foreign country izvozni vozarinski stav, vozarinski stav za izvoz (u luku druge države) exposed port (n) (ports, navig) luka izložena valovima i vjetru, nazaštićena luka: A high-sided ro-ro vessel was berthed in an exposed port, waiting to load cargo.

expose (to) (v) 1 izložiti (nečemu): ... under extreme sea conditions and when vessels sail in ballast, the vessel and (deck) cargo are not only exposed to a risk arising from excessive speed, but that reducing the speed. Another explanation could be that our berth, being the first one inside the breakwater, was more exposed to the ocean swell. In both these cases wires which usually rested in not easily accessible blocks were exposed to the elements. However, the location of her destination port meant that she would have to eventually transit more exposed waters. Thus bare steel was exposed to attack by the corrosive cargo.

Extended Dry-Docking Scheme (n) (nav arch) Shema produljenog intervala pregleda podvodnog dijela trupa na suhom

extension (n) 1 (marine eng) produžetak, proširenje: They inserted the fan extension hose into the tank and vacated the area. Winch brakes need to be applied tightly, and using a wheel spanner or extension bar to get added purchase may be necessary. This is an extension of US Coastguard directives which required all tonnage visiting US ports to display diagrams of their fuel loading, transfer and storage;

2 (shipping econ) produženje (vremena, roka): A further extension of maintenance intervals can be secured by plasma (ceramic) coating or chrome plating the surface of the uppermost piston ring.

extent (n) (shipping econ) to a greater extent u velikoj mjeri 1 obim: To determine the extent of flooding, the skipper checked the fish room and found water at the same level as that in the engine room.

2 veličina; 3 razmjer; 4 stupanj; 5 opseg, obim: The full extent of the damage to the smaller vessel was not realised until some time after the collision.

6 mjera to some extent u izvjesnoj mjeri, donekle: ... the pilot was left with little room for manoeuvre or time for critical decision making, and the grounding of the vessel became to some extent inevitable.
The bolts were wasted to such an extent that the threaded parts were reduced to 50% of their original diameter. To the extent that the master had permitted him to operate autonomously, the bolts were wasted to such an extent. The OOW had become over-confident in his ability, to the extent that he was prepared to stretch the parameters within which the master had permitted him to operate autonomously.

The OOW had become over-confident in his ability, to the extent that he was prepared to stretch the parameters within which the master had permitted him to operate autonomously. The bolts were wasted to such an extent that the threaded parts were reduced to 50% of their original diameter.

In such situations, the use and handling of AIS information becomes more difficult, and the AIS can not be used to its full extent, thus losing its meaning to the navigator.

Modern turbochargers with externally lubricated journal bearings have uncooled casings. The chamber is drained externally by a tap and cleaned without risk of contaminating the lubricating oil system.

The fire on board has been extinguished by crew members. The fire was fully extinguished within about an hour. The master decided it would be necessary to operate the engine room CO2 system to extinguish the fire. Attempts to extinguish fires in accommodation and engine room failed. Crew members were able to extinguish the fire and no injuries were reported, but the vessel remains without propulsion and adrift some 100 miles off the coast. http://gcaptain.com The fire was extinguished following activation of the CO2 smothering system.

The question of whether or not to extinguish the side lights once the vessel was no longer making way then arose.

The AB immediately unplugged the fan and fought the fire using a foam extinguisher located in the adjacent alleyway.

They were able to enter the compartment and discharge their CO2 extinguisher, but they were beaten back by the smoke. The crew put out the fire by using a portable CO2 extinguisher.

The fire was subsequently extinguished using a dry-chemical fire extinguisher. Following an unsuccessful attempt to fight the fire with a portable dry powder extinguisher, the engines were shut down and the air
He fetched a fire extinguisher from the forepeak and with 3-4 blasts put the fire out. The brake shoe on one of the aft captive drums caught fire as the winch paid out, and it had to be tackled with a fire extinguisher.

At least the cargo holds intended for the carriage of dangerous goods should be equipped such that they contain the possibility to use water as an extinguishing agent or for cooling via a permanently installed system as well. Dry chemical extinguishing systems are designed to combat Class B (flammable liquids and gases) and Class C (electrical) fires. Foam extinguishing systems are used to smother flammable liquid fires. Gas extinguishing systems have proved to be most efficient in enclosed spaces, such as machinery rooms, electrical panels and cargo holds. Fire extinguishing appliances are available on board ship.

Heating of sludge oil tanks, waste oil and oily water bilge tanks in order to extract water. Their surfaces are curved to extract the maximum amount of energy from the exhaust gases and transfer it to the turbine shaft.

F.C.L. (=full container load) (n) (mar law, shipping econ) ANTONYM LCL
COMPARE container load Full Container Load – means that the container has cargo that is shipped by one shipper for delivery to one consignee. FCL is one of the Container Service Types in shipping. In a FCL shipment the shipper usually packs its goods in the container and seals it; sav teret u kontejneru glasi na istoga primatelja; Quantity of cargo, which fills a shipping container to capacity, either by weight or cubic measurement.; an ocean shipment in which the cargo occupies a full container (of any size) (https://www.flexport.com/glossary/full-container-load/) izravna kontejnerska pošiljka, direktna kontejnerska pošiljka: FCL is cheaper than LCL LCL costs more than FCL per unit of freight. That’s because freight agents prefer a full container load rather than to figure out how to bundle many LCL shipments in a full container. FCL gets delivered more quickly than LCL

FCL allowance (mar law, shipping econ) Deduction from the FCL freight provided by a shipping line or liner conference to a shipper who loads a minimum number of tons or cubic meters of cargo into a shipping container. There may be various allowances depending on the degree of utilization of the container. feathering propeller /ˈfɪðərɪŋ/ (sailing/boating/yachting) COMPARE folding propeller COMPARE fixed propeller Feathering props are one of the best propellers for sailing boats when mixing performance under sail and power. they get their name due to the feathering blades, which align with water flow when in neutral. (http://myboatsgear.com/2016/12/27/sailboat-propellers/); an automatically self-pitching feathering propeller which varies its pitch depending on the operating conditions, thus maintaining maximum efficiency at all times. ... The blades automatically adjust their pitch to match the engine torque to the varying load conditions. (https://kingpropulsion.com/autoprop/); A propeller whose blades have been rotated so that the leading and trailing edges are nearly parallel with the aircraft flight path to stop or minimize drag and engine rotation.; Feathering props have blades that rotate 180 degrees so the leading edge is still the leading edge in reverse, which makes them more efficient in reverse over folding and fixed propellers. (http://myboatsgear.com/) sklopiovi prekretni propeler (s krilima u liniji kretanja jedrilice), sklopiovi propeler s promjenjivim korakom

Ilopatica: The Max-Prop feathering propeller had excellent stopping power, but needed rebuilding three times in 18 years. The Flexofold was sized to match the new smaller 75-horsepower engine.

very little drag when sailing as the prop instantly feathers unless the engine is engaged, no freewheeling in neutral, adjustable pitch, and incredible stopping power in reverse. Max-Prop can literally bring a boat from 6 knots to a dead stop in a boat length https://www.practical-sailor.com/issues/44_2/features/Folding-vs-Feathering-Props_12354-1.html?ET=practicalsailor:e36748:2438214a;&st=email&s=p_Grabbag012118 My installation required that the prop shaft be trimmed about 1/2 inch meaning that it could never again be used with a fixed prop; a critical concern to determine for your boat before undertaking...it is a marriage and divorce is always expensive. Consider this factor on any feathering/folding prop selection.
https://www.practical-sailor.com/issues/44_2/features/Folding-vs-Feathering-Props_12354-1.html?ET=practicalsailor:e36748:2438214a;&st=email&s=p_Grabbag012118# As the blades rotate 180 degrees in ¾ turn of the shaft a feathering propeller has the same efficiency in reverse as in forward. ... ... a feathering propeller is a low drag propeller. When motoring, the blades swing to the ahead or astern angled position, but under sail they ‘feather’, turning parallel to the boss. Feathering propellers typically produce nearly as much forward thrust as folding propellers and more forward thrust than those that are fixed. They are also generally more efficient than folding propellers when going astern.
https://www.sailmagazine.com/diy/why-low-drag-propellers Feathering props create about 5-10% of a fixed prop’s drag, sometimes less, while folding props have almost zero drag.

flood tide (n) plima, plimna struja, Italian: marea montante: Soon after the onset of the flood tide, the tension on the forward ropes increased and the bow was set slowly off the wharf. Although there was a flood tide and the westerly wind was blowing at 15 knots, a tug was not considered necessary.

floor /flɔː/ (n) (nav arch) poprječni nosivi element dna broda koji se proteže od uzvoja do uzvoja; Vertical transverse full-breadth plating between inner bottom and bottom shell plating.
The investigation later found that halfway down the ladder to the forecastle tweendeck, oxygen concentrations were in the order of 10% and only 5-6% at floor level. The Third Officer heard a cry and a thud on the floor of the hold, looking down, he saw the seafarer lying at the bottom of the hold. A few days into the voyage, with the ship pitching heavily in gale force winds and high seas, two crewmen were repairing the cabin flooring in a crew cabin.

Flotsam, jetsam, ligan (lagan) and wreck

Particular categories of property which may be salved. Flotsam refers to things found floating after a ship has perished. Jetsam refers to things thrown overboard to lighten a ship. Ligan (lagan) refers to things thrown overboard with

I went with a Gori folding prop for my Bavaria Vision 42 (Volvo 40 hp saildrive) and have been very happy with it. It has the lowest drag of any prop when folded, excellent reverse thrust, little to no prop walk, and an "overdrive" feature that can keep the reverse prop pitch while moving forward, for use when motorsailing or in flat water, resulting in increased fuel efficiency. A folding or feathering prop will need more maintenance than a fixed prop. A folding propeller will produce the least drag under sail.

free fall lifeboat (=FFB; freefall lifeboat) (n) (nav arch, safety) Some ships have freefall lifeboats, stored on a downward sloping slipway, dropping into the water as holdback is released. Such lifeboats are considerably heavier to survive the impact with water.

https://officerofthewatch.com/tools/maritime-dictionary/brodica.za.spašavanje.na.slobodan.pad, gravitacijska.brodica.za.spašavanje: While at anchor, an inspection of the free fall boat (FFB) was to be carried out, among other things. There is no standard procedure for launching free-fall lifeboats, as design and fittings vary considerably. Freefall lifeboats are used for their capability to launch nearly instantly and high reliability, and since 2006 are required on bulk carriers that are in danger of sinking too rapidly for conventional lifeboats to be released.

https://officerofthewatch.com/tools/maritime-dictionary/ While abandoning the ship, in case of FFB, the crew should proceed to assigned seats and fasten the seat belts. The freefall lifeboat was inadvertently released. (https://safety4sea.com/)

Frustration of Charter (n) (mar law) When the contract cannot be completed or materialized without the fault of any party it is called frustration. (https://www.lawteacher.net/free-law-essays/contract-law/shipping-and-charter-party-contract-law-essay.php); frustration occurs whenever the law recognises that, without default of either party, a contractual obligation has become incapable of being performed because the circumstances in which performance is called for would render it a thing radically different from that which was undertaken by the contract. Non haec in foedera veni. It was not this that I promised to do.

Frustration of contract under the carriage of goods by sea is concerned with the situation where, following the formation of a valid contract, an event occurs which is not the fault of either party but which has a significant impact on the obligations contained in the contract.

Owners had attempted to induce frustration of the charterparty by electing not to repair the vessel. There are various kinds of frustration and the first one is impossibility of the performance and this type of frustration happens when the ship that is chartered is lost or becomes constructive total loss. The second kind of frustration is that when any change has been brought in the law and as a result of this law the performance of the contract becomes unlawful and delay also causes frustration as a delay may result in not achieving the objectives of the contract.

GMDSS (navig, safety) = Global Maritime Distress Safety System. GMDSS is a digital electronic communications system which sends distress and safety information. It applies to vessels over 300 Gross Registered Tons and all international passenger vessels. GMDSS divides the world into four types of communications coverage (sea areas A1 to A4), which determine the appropriate terrestrial or satellite means of communication to use.

GPS position: Nowadays we have very good radars which have GPS inputs and we can determine the exact GPS position of the other vessel and also its SOG and COG etc. The declared primary method of navigation was by using paper charts, and watchkeepers were required to plot a GPS position on the chart every 2 hours. GPS receiver: The Master plotted the position displayed on the GPS receiver onto the paper chart and thus confirmed that the vessel was in very shallow water. GPS set: The two independent GPS sets were not routinely compared. GPS signal: After much trial and error and experimenting, we determined that the GPS signals were not being received on those particular headings only when a voice telephone call via Inmarsat A was being conducted from ship to shore. GPS track: All I can think of is that we were on the GPS track and, after a change of watch, the OOW did not want to be deviated from his track and took the shortest way back to it, 5 mile range scale, and a track for the destination was selected from the GPS track plotter. The owner and operator of a fishing vessel have been fined $1 million after pleading guilty to discharging oily bilge water from the vessel’s engine rooms. https://gCaptain.com

A VLCC loaded parcels of Arab light and Arab medium crude oil from a large export terminal in the Arabian Gulf. Our vessel is a first generation containership and we were en route from the Persian Gulf to Singapore. A vessel was recently loading a gaseous chemical cargo in a U.S. Gulf port. The ship was in the Gulf of Aden, underway from Tanjung Pelepas, Malaysia to Rotterdam, the Netherlands.

Large deep-draught vessels are requested to stay at least 1 nautical mile eastward of the Light Buoy for pilot boarding because of the strength and proximity of the Gulf Stream current.

The skipper reports that the port gunwale was under the water and that water reached the level of the fish hatch. The fishing vessel sustained damage to its prow and gunwale; the tanker a little paint damage to her hull. When there was sufficient of the rope in the boat, it was secured by a stopper attached to the gunwale of the boat.
